TWO MAJOR PARTIES TO ACT HARMONIOUSLY

Five Naval Powers Take Up Disarmament Phases

U. S., ENGLAND, JAPAN, FRANCE, ITALY CO-OPERATE

SEEK TO INSERT WASHINGTON, LONDON NAVAL ACCORDS INTO DRAFT CONVENTION

WILL DISCUSS GUN CALIBRE, ARMING OF MERCHANTMEN, SIZE OF PERSONNEL, ETC.

By SAMUEL DASHIELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, Nov. 10.—The five largest naval powers of the world considered today how far they would support the limitation of related items in the program of the preparatory disarmament commisson of the League of Nations.

Delegates from the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy worked on the preparation of a memorandum providing for the insertion of the Washington and London naval accords into the draft convention which the preparatory commission hopes to evolve as the basis for a world disarmament conference. Items of naval disarmament not considered in the Washington and London treaties will also be considered in the memorandum of the five powers.

Since the commission's proposed disarmament convention will cover all forms of armament, such as calibre of guns, arming of merchant ships, and distributon and size of personnel, the big powers decided to discuss these things among themselves.

It was understood that the big five would not attempt further attempts to extend the Washington and London treaties to other powers, except by methods already discussed at the London conference. Many delegates here consider the method too complicated to form the basis for a draft convention.

The commission adopted a draft convention on land, sea and air manpower, by which countries using conscription would pledge themselves not to exceed the maximum universal period of training to be decided at the coming general disarmament conference. Suggestions for the length of the training period varied, ranging from one year proposed by France to four proposed by Japan.

AMMEL, FLIER OF MINNESOTA, FLYING TO PANAMA

ATTEMPTING NON-STOP FROM NEW YORK, DIFFICULTY IN GETTING STARTED

BIG SHIP ZIG-ZAGGED AND SPILLED GASOLINE, THEN CIRCLED SLOWLY AT START

Balboa, Canal Zone, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Capt. Roy W. Ammel completed a non-stop flight from New York to Panama when he landed on France Field at 2:45 P. M. today.

Ammel's progress was retarted by storms, which he encountered over most of the 2,000-mile journey.

The Chicago broker flew a low-winged monoplane somewhat similar to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's. He left Floyd Bennett airport, New York, at 2:10 P. M. yesterday making the journey in 24 hours and 35 minutes. He carried 650 gallons of gasoline.

New York, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Captain Roy W. Ammel, Minnesota flier, was somewhere between New York and Panama today en route to the latter point on an attempted non-stop flight.

He left Floyd Bennet airport, Brooklyn, at 2:10 p. m. Sunday after no little difficulty in getting its heavily loaded Lockheed low winged "Blue Flash" off the ground.

The big ship zig-zagged from side to side, spilling gasoline as she sped down the 100-foot concrete runway. It rose just as it reached the end of the concrete, ascended slowly until it reached an altitude of 500 feet, then circled the field a few times and headed down the coast.

Captain Ammel planned to fly straight to Florida, from there across the gulf and Caribbean to France field at Panama, some 2700 miles, 1400 of which are over water.

The "Blue Flash" carried 650 gallons of gasoline and 34 gallons of oil on this flight which was substituted by Ammel for his projected trans-Atlantic flight, called off after several weeks of bad weather.

DAILY BANDIT STORY IN COUNTRY

Riverside, Calif., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Four bandits today robbed the Murietta Hot Springs hotel of $2,500 and escaped after temporarily kidnaping three employes of the hotel.

DIAMOND BROKER'S POCKET PICKED AND LOSES $40,000 JEWELS

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Morris Feinberg, Los Angeles diamond broker, stepped from a train here today into a crowd on the platform, a man jostled him and picked the broker's pocket, escaping with a wallet containing diamonds valued at $40,000 and uninsured.

Feinberg did not discover his loss until he had eaten breakfast in the station lunch room and went to have his ticket validated.

The pickpocket missed another wallet which contained stones valued at $30,000.

WICKERSHAM BODY WRESTLES WITH PROBLEMS

THE PROHIBITION QUESTION ENGROSSES ATTENTION OF COMMISSION

DRY FORCES PREPARING TO MEET ANY CHALLENGE TO PROHIBITION

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 10.—While members of the Wickersham law enforcement commission struggle over the prohibition problem, preparations are being made among dry forces to meet, with a strongly organized counter attack, any challenge to federal prohibition from whatever source, either in the old or the next congress, it was learned today.

The proposal now under discussion is understood to look to creation of an organization of nationally prominent business leaders, to emphasize the economic benefits of prohibition.

Business leaders played a large part in forcing prohibition through because they felt it was beneficial economically to the country. But after the 18th amendment was adopted their interest lagged and the job of carrying on the fight fell to church leaders, the Anti-Saloon League, W. C. T. U. and similar groups.

Many dry leaders have been impressed with the apparent effectiveness of anti-prohibition propaganda and the use that has been made by wets of business men with well-known names. They propose now to call back into the fight some of their former supporters in the industrial world.

President Hoover, while secretary of commerce, in one of his reports, attributed the economic progress of the country in part to prohibition. Drys believe that emphasis on this note is what they need now.

The law enforcement commission which continues in session this week has become much disturbed by the impression which has been widely circulated in press dispatches that it is about to recommend restoration of beer.

This situation led the commission to issue, over the week-end, a formal statement declaring no conclusions "which were ripe for publication" had been reached, that certain phases of the investigation had not been completed, and that any statements as to what the report would contain "are purely conjectural."

The holdover congress which meets next month is about three-fourths dry in both houses. This fact, plus the fact that the session must end under the constitution on March 4, is regarded as making unlikely any fundamental changes in the dry law at the coming session, regardless of what the Wickersham commission reports.

MARA HALF MILLION SUIT AGAINST TUNNEY IS NEARING END

New York, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Gene Tunney may know today if he must pay part of his earnings as heavyweight boxing champion for services allegedly tendered him by Timothy J. Mara, sports promoter.

Mara sued the former champion for a half million, offering a signed agreement that he would receive from Tunney and Billy Gibson, his manager, 10 per cent of $200,000 for a Dempsey-Tunney bout if fought in 1926. He also presented a letter from Tunney promising him 25 per cent of Gene's earnings if he became champion.

Tunney offered testimony to prove the 10 per cent contract was good only in case the fight were held in New York. And he claimed he wrote the 25 per cent letter to Mara only to quiet the latter, who, he said, was demanding that sum on a threat to keep the fight out of New York.

Summation speeches by Martin W. Littleton for Mara and Emory Buckner for Tunney were expected to complete the case in court this morning.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER TO CLOSE EARLY THIS YEAR

BUOYS AND MARKERS TO BE PICKED UP THIS WEEK, SHORE LIGHTS REMOVED

50 PER CENT REDUCTION ON FREIGHT ANNOUNCED BY EAGLE PACKET COMPANY

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Due to the low stage of the water the Mississippi river will be closed a week earlier this year than in previous years. Buoys and markers will be picked up this week and all shore lights removed by the government light house tender Wakerobin.

The Wakerobin was scheduled to leave St. Paul, Minn., today on a trip down the river and after it passes Quincy all navigation north of here will be closed for the winter. Quincy bay is filling up with government boats and other craft for winter quarters.

A reduction of 50 per cent on freight has been announced by the Eagle Packet Company in order to compete with motor transports. The reduction is believed to be the first in the history of river navigation for the purpose of offering competition to motor trucks.

Minneapolis, Nov .10.—(U.P.)—Government engineers today started to close the upper Mississippi for the year but barge traffic will not be suspended for another week, officials of the Inland Waterways Corporation announced.

The U. S. tug, General Allen will leave here at 2 p. m. to pick up bouys and markers along the upper river channel and the lighthouse tender Wakerobin will leave Fountain City, Wis., tomorrow on the same task.

Two heavily laden barge tows are on their way north from St. Louis now, barge line officials said. The barges will navigate without aid of channel markers on the last stretch of their up-river trip and on the return voyage, they said.

The S. S. Webber will leave today or tomorrow with the last "pay" load for the south.

Navigation on the upper Mississippi is closing at approximately the same date as last year, barge officials said.

BELIEVE 5 BANDITS SEPARATED AFTER TRAIN ROBBERY

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Belief that the five bandits who robbed a Southern Pacific train of $55,700 at Nobel, 30 miles north of here, in one of the most smoothly executed robberies ever staged in the west, had seperated and were making their "get away" individually was held by authorities today.

Attempts to link the robbery with the recent looting of the U. S. arsenal at San Bernadino of machine guns and ammunitions, through empty cartridge boxes found near the siding where the train was stopped, have proved futile.

1,000 NATIVES KILLED IN ANNAM REVOLT TROUBLE

Paris, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—The radical-socialist newspaper Republique said today that, "despite rigorous censorship" of events in French Indo-China, it had learned that 1,000 natives in Annam had been killed since September. Revolutionary uprisings had been reported from Indo-China recently, officials blaming the warfare on communist activities.

REPORTER FINDS SHATTERED HULK OF DISASTER SHIP

GRIM EVIDENCE OF TRAGEDY CLAIMED 18 LIVES NEAR SAN FRANCISCO

VESSEL, WITHOUT WARNING, TURNED UPSIDE SATURDAY, DROWNING CREW

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Grim evidence of the sea disaster that Saturday claimed 18 lives today rested in the shattered wreckage of the steam schooner Brooklyn, washed ashore three miles west of Eureka.

The battered hulk was found by a local reporter who refused to believe that all signs of the tragedy had disappeared in the waves of the pounding Pacific. Searching along the shores, he finally came upon the hulk—shattered almost beyond recognition.

The cause of the disaster remained a secret. Suddenly, and without warning, the vessel turned upside down Saturday afternoon, carrying the entire crew to its death. All hope of finding any members alive was abandoned when the debris of the wreck began to wash ashore Sunday afternoon.

Simultaneously with the discovery of the Brooklyn's hulk, a final futile effort was made to free the tanker Tamiahua from its reef bound position off Pigeon Point. The vessel, iron bound in the grip of Pescadero reef, was almost despaired of saving. Grounding in a fog last Thursday, the ship has since been surrounded by tugs and coast guard cutters trying to pull it free.

FATAL SHOOTING OVER ARGUMENT

RICHARD HANNA, 18, OF CLEVELAND, SHOT AND KILLED, AND BROTHER WOUNDED

Huntsburg, O., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—In a shooting which grew out of an argument over their right to hunt game on Sunday, Richard Hanna, 18, of Cleveland, was shot and killed yesterday and his brother, George, 23, was wounded.

Game Warden Ambrose I. Davis of Greauga county and Constable Charles Merdith of Huntsburg reported that the two boys and an older brother James, 27, were found hunting on Sunday in violation of a game law.

Ordered to desist, the officers said, the young men insulted them and retreated to the boundaries of the farm of their father, Frank Hanna, near here. There, the officers charged, they attacked Davis and Meredith, wrestling Davis' gun from him.

Richard Hanna, they said, opened fire on Davis with his own gun. Meredith says he returned the fire. Hanna was killed instantly with a bullet through his heart. George Hanna was wounded in the shoulder, in the exchange of shots.

CRAFT MOVES SLOWLY FROM HER MOORING PLACE

DUTCH PATROL BOAT PREVIOUSLY RAMMED ONE OF PONTOON SUPPORTERS

5 HOURS HAD BEEN REQUIRED TO MAKE THE NECESSARY REPAIRS

Calshot, England, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—The flying boat DO-X landed at 3:33 P. M., after a flight from Amsterdam on the second stage of its leisurely voyage to the United States.

The DO-X made an easy landing about three-quarters of a mile off Calshot Point, and taxied about smoothly.

It was first sighted at 3:25 P. M. accompanied by a swarm of airplanes and seaplanes.

Before landing, the DO-X circled the Calshot airdrome and Cowes at an altitude of about 800 feet. Royal air tenders came alongside as soon as the big plane descended. A large crowd gathered at the airdrome.

Amsterdam, Nov. 10.—(U.P.) — The German flying boat DO-X took off from the Zuyder Zee for Calshot, Southampton Water, England, at 11:45 today.

Two of the giant ship's motors were started at 10:07, local time and the craft moved slowly from her mooring place to the open water. Several hundred spectators cheered as the ship made ready for the next hop of the flight to New York.

Passengers were ordered aboard at 9 A. M.

A Dutch patrol boat, maneuvering alongside the DO-X yesterday rammed the flying boat and holed one of her pontoon supporters. Five hours were required to make repairs.

Twenty-one passengers were aboard for the journey to Calshot. The majority were continentals.

The flying boat left the water at 10:56 in an attempt to start but landed again at 11:03. Her motors were left running.

THIEVES STOLE A RED HOT STOVE OF CHICAGO COUPLE

Chicago, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Malloy banked the coal stove so it would stay hot for several hours last night and went out to a movie.

"It's a good thing we left a fire," shivered Malloy as they walked homeward.

They entered their home and looked around. The sofa, chairs, rugs, refrigerator, bed, all of the furniture, in fact, was gone.

"Evidently they hauled it away in a moving van," said Malloy, "but how did they carry out that red hot stove?"

UNEMPLOYMENT SHARPEST CRISIS OF ITS KIND

DR. LEO WOLMAN, NATIONALLY KNOWN ECONOMIST, ADVISING PRESIDENT

PEAK OF SITUATION, SAYS DOCTOR, WILL COME EARLY IN FEBRUARY

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 10.—Dr. Leo Wolman, nationally known economist who is advising in President Hoover's efforts to cope with unemployment, diagnosed today the problem as the sharpest crisis of its kind in American history.

Almost 10 years ago Wolman was a member of President Harding's committee and served under Mr. Hoover's chairmanship. He is a member of the National Bureau of Economic Research, a New Yorker and authority on unemployment statistics and unemployment insurance. The facts as Dr. Wolman sees them forbid hope for more than alleviation of the situation this winter. He predicts no panacea.

Neither does Wolman share the belief reiterated in administration quarters that the unemployed aggregate only 3,500,000. His figure is considerably higher and the peak still is to come—probably in February, he said.

"Whether there are 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 unemployed," Wolman told the United Press, "does not alter the fact that this is the most serious unemployment crisis in the nation's history."

Chairman Arthur Woods of the president's emergency committee on employment today called a committee to make a chart which be made to obtain more accurate figures on the number and distribution of unemployed persons in the United States. He said the chart is expected to make public within a week a figure representing the number of jobless as of November 1. As a basis for future monthly estimates, the committee's statisticians will take the 3,500,000 estimate made by President Hoover last month.

Charts prepared by the committee and based on labor department statistics show a uniform decrease in unemployment during recent months accompanied by increasing part time work.

George F. Getz, chairman of the Illinois unemployment relief commission, informed Woods today of plans for Chicago involving an emergency budget of $5,000,000. Among these projects is the disbursement of $1,000,000 at regular wage scales for emergency work such as cleaning parks, forest preserves and streets. This type of work is to be given men with dependents.

H. D. Bradley of the Bridgeport, Conn., Time-Star, outlined to Woods in a letter today a program of free "help wanted" and a "situation wanted" advertisements now being run by many newspapers. Bradley said the Bridgeport paper was printing two full pages of such advertisements daily.

ENLIST 'TALKIES' TO STIR BUYING POWER OF PEOPLE

Philadelphia, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Heads of the vast motion picture industry today moved to throw the tremendous advertising power of the "talkies" behind a campaign designed to awaken the buying power of the people of the United States as a definite step toward bringing back prosperity and relieving unemployment.

Meeting in their eleventh annual convention here, the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, representing the vast majority of the industry's theatre owners, approved a proposition to cooperate in a nation-wide showing of trailers, news reels and other methods of advertising for a "buy now" campaign, similar to that inaugurated several weeks ago by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

ANIMOSITIES OF CAMPAIGN IRONED OUT

PARTY DIFFERENCES MODERATED, TO WORK TOGETHER FOR ECONOMIC WELFARE

72ND CONGRESS TO BE DIVIDED ALMOST EVENLY ON PARTY LINES

Washington, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Republicans have accepted the democratic offer of co-operation in governmental affairs and a feeling of harmony between the two parties today had succeeded the animosities engendered in the late campaign.

With the announced intention of forgetting party differences and working together toward economic welfare political leaders have effectively subdued discussion of possible clashes over legislative programs in a congress which will be divided almost evenly on party lines.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, republican leader of the senate, issued his acceptance of the peace offer of leading democrats after consultation with President Hoover and it was accepted as a statement of administration policy. Commenting upon Watson's reply, Chairman Jouett Shouse of the democratic national committee, said:

"The main thing in the minds of every patriotic American is to right the economic machine in this country. Partisan politics is adjourned, I believe, until that end is accomplished."

Watson stressed the same point when he concluded his statement, saying:

"We are faced with a national situation where the only patriotic solution lies in co-operative action and I welcome it and I am sure my colleagues will welcome it also."

Referring to the statement last Friday of Shouse, Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob and other democratic leaders, Watson said:

"The country is in a time of difficulty from world-wide causes and co-operative action in the senate is necessary. I believe their statement should steady the public mind. It was, no doubt, put forward in the hope that it would stabilize the public markets which have been falling out of unnecessary alarm since the day of election, and it should carry conviction that this alarm is uncalled for because it gives assurance that there will be no attempt on the part of the democratic party to support disturbing legislation."

"It is obviously the duty of republican members to co-operate," Watson continued. "The two parties are practically equally divided in the congress. It may be that the republicans have a majority in the lower house. The very evenness of division between the two parties is without parallel in our history."

NEW PARLIAMENT ELECTED IN AUSTRIA

SLIGHT GAIN FOR SOCIALIST PARTY AND FAILURE OF AUSTRIAN FASCISTS

Vienna, Austria, Nov. 10.—(U.P.) — A slight gain for the socialist party and the failure of the Austrian fascist elements to win control of the government was announced officially today in returns from the election of a new parliament.

The official returns gave the socialists 72 seats, as compared to 71 in the old parliament; the Christian socialists, who were allied with the Heimwehr (fascist) organization, won 66 seats, compared to 73 formerly held; the new moderate or center bloc, led by former Chancellor Johann Schober won 19 seats and the independent fascists won eight.

The result would leave the balance of power in the center bloc, which includes part of the former Pan-German and peasant parties.

SPECTACULAR FIRE IN MINNEAPOLIS

BRIGHTON ELEVATOR IN NORTHWEST TERMINAL DISTRICT IS $50,000 LOSS

Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Fire department investigators today studied the ruins of the Brighton elevator in the northwest terminal district in an effort to determine the cause of a spectacular blaze which destroyed the structure at a loss of $50,000.

Fire broke out in the elevator shortly after dark last night and quickly spread through the wooden structure. More than 25,000 bushels of grain were destroyed. Thousands of persons gathered to watch the fire which was visible from most of northeast Minneapolis due to the elevated position of the storage tanks.

Firemen were handicapped in combatting the flames when they were forced to run their hoses several thousand feet to bring up water.

BELIEVE 5 BANDITS SEPARATED AFTER TRAIN ROBBERY

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Belief that the five bandits who robbed a Southern Pacific train of $55,700 at Nobel, 30 miles north of here, in one of the most smoothly executed robberies ever staged in the west, had seperated and were making their "get away" individually was held by authorities today.

Attempts to link the robbery with the recent looting of the U. S. arsenal at San Bernadino of machine guns and ammunitions, through empty cartridge boxes found near the siding where the train was stopped, have proved futile.

1,000 NATIVES KILLED IN ANNAM REVOLT TROUBLE

Paris, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—The radical-socialist newspaper Republique said today that, "despite rigorous censorship" of events in French Indo-China, it had learned that 1,000 natives in Annam had been killed since September. Revolutionary uprisings had been reported from Indo-China recently, officials blaming the warfare on communist activities.

REPORTER FINDS SHATTERED HULK OF DISASTER SHIP

GRIM EVIDENCE OF TRAGEDY CLAIMED 18 LIVES NEAR SAN FRANCISCO

VESSEL, WITHOUT WARNING, TURNED UPSIDE SATURDAY, DROWNING CREW

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Grim evidence of the sea disaster that Saturday claimed 18 lives today rested in the shattered wreckage of the steam schooner Brooklyn, washed ashore three miles west of Eureka.

The battered hulk was found by a local reporter who refused to believe that all signs of the tragedy had disappeared in the waves of the pounding Pacific. Searching along the shores, he finally came upon the hulk—shattered almost beyond recognition.

The cause of the disaster remained a secret. Suddenly, and without warning, the vessel turned upside down Saturday afternoon, carrying the entire crew to its death. All hope of finding any members alive was abandoned when the debris of the wreck began to wash ashore Sunday afternoon.

Simultaneously with the discovery of the Brooklyn's hulk, a final futile effort was made to free the tanker Tamiahua from its reef bound position off Pigeon Point. The vessel, iron bound in the grip of Pescadero reef, was almost despaired of saving. Grounding in a fog last Thursday, the ship has since been surrounded by tugs and coast guard cutters trying to pull it free.

FATAL SHOOTING OVER ARGUMENT

RICHARD HANNA, 18, OF CLEVELAND, SHOT AND KILLED, AND BROTHER WOUNDED

Huntsburg, O., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—In a shooting which grew out of an argument over their right to hunt game on Sunday, Richard Hanna, 18, of Cleveland, was shot and killed yesterday and his brother, George, 23, was wounded.

Game Warden Ambrose I. Davis of Greauga county and Constable Charles Merdith of Huntsburg reported that the two boys and an older brother James, 27, were found hunting on Sunday in violation of a game law.

Ordered to desist, the officers said, the young men insulted them and retreated to the boundaries of the farm of their father, Frank Hanna, near here. There, the officers charged, they attacked Davis and Meredith, wrestling Davis' gun from him.

Richard Hanna, they said, opened fire on Davis with his own gun. Meredith says he returned the fire. Hanna was killed instantly with a bullet through his heart. George Hanna was wounded in the shoulder, in the exchange of shots.

THIEVES STOLE A RED HOT STOVE OF CHICAGO COUPLE

Chicago, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Malloy banked the coal stove so it would stay hot for several hours last night and went out to a movie.

"It's a good thing we left a fire," shivered Malloy as they walked homeward.

They entered their home and looked around. The sofa, chairs, rugs, refrigerator, bed, all of the furniture, in fact, was gone.

"Evidently they hauled it away in a moving van," said Malloy, "but how did they carry out that red hot stove?"

UNEMPLOYMENT SHARPEST CRISIS OF ITS KIND

DR. LEO WOLMAN, NATIONALLY KNOWN ECONOMIST, ADVISING PRESIDENT

PEAK OF SITUATION, SAYS DOCTOR, WILL COME EARLY IN FEBRUARY

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 10.—Dr. Leo Wolman, nationally known economist who is advising in President Hoover's efforts to cope with unemployment, diagnosed today the problem as the sharpest crisis of its kind in American history.

Almost 10 years ago Wolman was a member of President Harding's committee and served under Mr. Hoover's chairmanship. He is a member of the National Bureau of Economic Research, a New Yorker and authority on unemployment statistics and unemployment insurance. The facts as Dr. Wolman sees them forbid hope for more than alleviation of the situation this winter. He predicts no panacea.

Neither does Wolman share the belief reiterated in administration quarters that the unemployed aggregate only 3,500,000. His figure is considerably higher and the peak still is to come—probably in February, he said.

"Whether there are 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 unemployed," Wolman told the United Press, "does not alter the fact that this is the most serious unemployment crisis in the nation's history."

Chairman Arthur Woods of the president's emergency committee on employment today called a committee to make a chart which be made to obtain more accurate figures on the number and distribution of unemployed persons in the United States. He said the chart is expected to make public within a week a figure representing the number of jobless as of November 1. As a basis for future monthly estimates, the committee's statisticians will take the 3,500,000 estimate made by President Hoover last month.

Charts prepared by the committee and based on labor department statistics show a uniform decrease in unemployment during recent months accompanied by increasing part time work.

George F. Getz, chairman of the Illinois unemployment relief commission, informed Woods today of plans for Chicago involving an emergency budget of $5,000,000. Among these projects is the disbursement of $1,000,000 at regular wage scales for emergency work such as cleaning parks, forest preserves and streets. This type of work is to be given men with dependents.

H. D. Bradley of the Bridgeport, Conn., Time-Star, outlined to Woods in a letter today a program of free "help wanted" and a "situation wanted" advertisements now being run by many newspapers. Bradley said the Bridgeport paper was printing two full pages of such advertisements daily.

ENLIST 'TALKIES' TO STIR BUYING POWER OF PEOPLE

Philadelphia, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Heads of the vast motion picture industry today moved to throw the tremendous advertising power of the "talkies" behind a campaign designed to awaken the buying power of the people of the United States as a definite step toward bringing back prosperity and relieving unemployment.

Meeting in their eleventh annual convention here, the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, representing the vast majority of the industry's theatre owners, approved a proposition to cooperate in a nation-wide showing of trailers, news reels and other methods of advertising for a "buy now" campaign, similar to that inaugurated several weeks ago by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

ANIMOSITIES OF CAMPAIGN IRONED OUT

PARTY DIFFERENCES MODERATED, TO WORK TOGETHER FOR ECONOMIC WELFARE

72ND CONGRESS TO BE DIVIDED ALMOST EVENLY ON PARTY LINES

Washington, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Republicans have accepted the democratic offer of co-operation in governmental affairs and a feeling of harmony between the two parties today had succeeded the animosities engendered in the late campaign.

With the announced intention of forgetting party differences and working together toward economic welfare political leaders have effectively subdued discussion of possible clashes over legislative programs in a congress which will be divided almost evenly on party lines.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, republican leader of the senate, issued his acceptance of the peace offer of leading democrats after consultation with President Hoover and it was accepted as a statement of administration policy. Commenting upon Watson's reply, Chairman Jouett Shouse of the democratic national committee, said:

"The main thing in the minds of every patriotic American is to right the economic machine in this country. Partisan politics is adjourned, I believe, until that end is accomplished."

Watson stressed the same point when he concluded his statement, saying:

"We are faced with a national situation where the only patriotic solution lies in co-operative action and I welcome it and I am sure my colleagues will welcome it also."

Referring to the statement last Friday of Shouse, Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob and other democratic leaders, Watson said:

"The country is in a time of difficulty from world-wide causes and co-operative action in the senate is necessary. I believe their statement should steady the public mind. It was, no doubt, put forward in the hope that it would stabilize the public markets which have been falling out of unnecessary alarm since the day of election, and it should carry conviction that this alarm is uncalled for because it gives assurance that there will be no attempt on the part of the democratic party to support disturbing legislation."

"It is obviously the duty of republican members to co-operate," Watson continued. "The two parties are practically equally divided in the congress. It may be that the republicans have a majority in the lower house. The very evenness of division between the two parties is without parallel in our history."

NEW PARLIAMENT ELECTED IN AUSTRIA

SLIGHT GAIN FOR SOCIALIST PARTY AND FAILURE OF AUSTRIAN FASCISTS

Vienna, Austria, Nov. 10.—(U.P.) — A slight gain for the socialist party and the failure of the Austrian fascist elements to win control of the government was announced officially today in returns from the election of a new parliament.

The official returns gave the socialists 72 seats, as compared to 71 in the old parliament; the Christian socialists, who were allied with the Heimwehr (fascist) organization, won 66 seats, compared to 73 formerly held; the new moderate or center bloc, led by former Chancellor Johann Schober won 19 seats and the independent fascists won eight.

The result would leave the balance of power in the center bloc, which includes part of the former Pan-German and peasant parties.

SPECTACULAR FIRE IN MINNEAPOLIS

BRIGHTON ELEVATOR IN NORTHWEST TERMINAL DISTRICT IS $50,000 LOSS

Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Fire department investigators today studied the ruins of the Brighton elevator in the northwest terminal district in an effort to determine the cause of a spectacular blaze which destroyed the structure at a loss of $50,000.

Fire broke out in the elevator shortly after dark last night and quickly spread through the wooden structure. More than 25,000 bushels of grain were destroyed. Thousands of persons gathered to watch the fire which was visible from most of northeast Minneapolis due to the elevated position of the storage tanks.

Firemen were handicapped in combatting the flames when they were forced to run their hoses several thousand feet to bring up water.

CHRIST FOR ALL—ALL FOR CHRIST

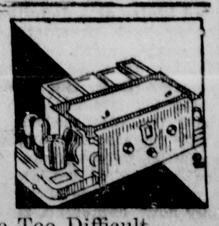

The Word of God

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Psalm 119: 105

THE PURPOSE OF CHRIST— Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous. He that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.—1 John 3:7, 8.

CHRIST FOR ALL—ALL FOR CHRIST
The Word of God
Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Psalm 119: 105

THE PURPOSE OF CHRIST— Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous. He that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.—1 John 3:7, 8.

MUSICAL CLUB HAS LUNCHEON, PROGRAM

Sixty Members Served by Domestc Science Department at Brainerd High School

Professor Cochrane Reads Drama Stressing Need for Honesty in Politics

The second session of the Musical Club Saturday was interesting from various points of view. It began with a delicious luncheon at the high school where sixty members were served by Miss Bertha Filk, the domestic science instructor, and girls in the department. The tables were decorated with candles and chrysanthemums, and were the scene of a jolly group interested in getting acquainted through conversation and through singing, which was led by Miss Mildred O'Brien. Prof. Cochrane, guest of honor, who was introduced by Mrs. J. A. Thabes, spoke briefly on the value of drama instruction in the high school.

The program of the afternoon at the Elks Hall was introduced by the president, Mrs. E. J. Quinn, who urged the members to save tinfoil for the crippled children's hospital in St. Paul and bring what they could at the next meeting to Mrs. D. E. Whitney, in charge of the project. Mrs. Quinn introduced Mrs. Colson, district president of the Federated Women's Clubs. Mrs. Colson spoke of the enthusiasm and inspiration gathered at the meeting at Albert Lea, where the most important subject under discussion was that of international relationships. The teaching of Spanish was stressed in this respect as nineteen nations speak Spanish, whereas the other tongues claim the allegiance of only one country. She emphasized the value of organizing Junior and Senior clubs to help the smaller organizations and then pleaded for an endowment fund to help with the expenses of the state department.

The main event of the day was the reading of that intensely dramatic play—"The Man of the Hour." Prof. Cochrane stated that he had chosen this play as singularly appropriate at election time, in that it stressed the need for honesty in politics and the desire of the many for civic righteousness in their public servants.

In a very large degree the various characters were clearly drawn, the transition from one to the other being made with ease. The feeling of tense expectancy were amply repaid, for Prof. Cochrane has the ability to build toward a climax so that the audience sat in increasing excitement, waiting to hear whether the hero carries out the promises of the first two acts, or tragically submits to the prevailing graft of the day. That the play was well read was evidenced by the absorbed attention of the listeners. So delightful an afternoon may well be repeated. Altogether, the day was a very real success.

JUDGE A. E. DOE OF PROBATE COURT, STILLWATER, DIES

Stillwater, Minn., Nov. 10.—(UP)—Judge A. E. Doe, judge of probate court in Washington county for 24 years, died suddenly here yesterday.

Judge Doe was 67 years old. He had served on various judicial benches in Stillwater since 1887 when he was first named judge of the municipal court.

He was well known in St. Paul, having filled in on the Ramsey county bench numerous times when sitting judges were ill. He at one time served as U. S. commissioner for the fourth district.

He is survived by his wife and his daughter Mrs. Robert Taylor, Chicago.

Hikers Visit Ruth Lake on Sunday

A group of cars gathered up the hikers of the Brainerd Hiking club Sunday afternoon, taking them to the McKay cottage on Ruth lake. From there the trail was laid for a hike to the government dam, then on to Pike bay. The sunny beach was the resting spot and play ground for the hikers.

The return to the cottage was made by another trail passing near Squaw point on the shores of Gull lake. At the cottage games were played by the light of the fireplace while the supper was being prepared.

On Wednesday evening another hike will be held. Everyone is welcome to come.

PLAN $1,000,000 JOB FUND

RANGE SYMPHONY MAKES FINE HIT

Concert at Auditorium Sunday Declared One of Best Ever Presented in City

The Range Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Maestro Luigi Lombardi, presented to the Brainerd audience one of the best concerts ever given in the city in its appearance at the Washington high school auditorium yesterday afternoon. Maestro Lombardi proved himself a director of great ability in his complete control over the players. He used good taste in the numbers, choosing a varied program and one to appeal to all lovers of good music.

Miss Carmela Santini, soprano gave a group of three songs, responding with "Just For You" as an encore. She delighted the audience with her songs and received liberal applause.

Mme Ada Lombardi in her fine work at the piano was the outstanding artist in the group of talented musicians. The program from beginning to end was one of exceptional merit.

A full account of the concert will be given in tomorrow's Dispatch.

ARMISTICE DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Legion and Auxiliary to Take Lead in Commemoration of Closing of War

The American Legion and Ladies Auxiliary will lead organizations observing Armistice Day which is declared here a holiday for banks and an afternoon holiday for students.

Special programs are being planned in some of the schools.

Mayor F. E. Little today issued the following proclamation for observance.

"In view of the everlasting significance of the eleventh day of November I believe the city of Brainerd should make it memorable.

"Therefore as Mayor of the City of Brainerd I do hereby request and urge all citizens of the city to suitably decorate their homes, stores and offices and in all ways recognize the eleventh day of November, the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice. And while you observe this day let us not forget the boys who did their bit, by helping the local American Legion who will sponsor a dance Tuesday evening."

The Legion will hold a dinner at the Iron Exchange hall served by the Legion Auxiliary to be followed by a dance in the U. C. T. hall.

The Armistice Day football game between Brainerd and Crosby-Ironton at Crosby will attract many.

TRAINED PIG WILL COMPETE FOR HONOR

Dykeman Boy Enters "Little Willie" in Showmanship Meet at Junior Livestock Show

OFF FOR SOUTH ST. PAUL

Representative 4-H Members and Entries Make Trip to State Meet Today

Two pigs, three lambs, and poultry, were riding merrily to South St. Paul from Brainerd in a trailer today to take in the Junior Livestock Show with their owners, representative 4-H club boys and girls from this county.

The members wil fare better than the pigs, lambs and poultry, because after the exhibition and competition the farm yard family will be sold to the highest bidders. Their new owners may not be so kind and considerate as have the 4-H club members.

One of the pigs going to South St. Paul is receiving especial care. It is owned by Clinton Forester of Dykeman and there's a reason. Clinton determined to teach "Little Willie" with the little corkscrew tail some fine manners. Now with the least flick of a small whip the pig will step dantily to one side. Clinton's has been unable to teach the pig to stand on his hind legs but in spite of this he intends to enter it in the showmanship contest.

Boys and girls making the trip with County Agent E. G. Roth today and their entries are: Clinton Forester, Dykeman, pig; Charles Smith, Lake Edwards, pig; Percy Kagel, Aitkin, lamb; Josephine Brenna, Lake Edwards, lamb; Everett Racine, St. Mathias, lamb; Elaine Cook, Nokay Lake, poultry; Harold Johnson, Emily, poultry; Arne Kivioja, Deerwood, turkey.

The Junior Livestock Show is being held from November 10 to 13, inclusive.

Prof. Cochrane, guest of honor, who was introduced by Mrs. J. A. Thabes, spoke briefly on the value of drama instruction in the high school.

The program of the afternoon at the Elks Hall was introduced by the president, Mrs. E. J. Quinn, who urged the members to save tinfoil for the crippled children's hospital in St. Paul and bring what they could at the next meeting to Mrs. D. E. Whitney, in charge of the project. Mrs. Quinn introduced Mrs. Colson, district president of the Federated Women's Clubs. Mrs. Colson spoke of the enthusiasm and inspiration gathered at the meeting at Albert Lea, where the most important subject under discussion was that of international relationships. The teaching of Spanish was stressed in this respect as nineteen nations speak Spanish, whereas the other tongues claim the allegiance of only one country. She emphasized the value of organizing Junior and Senior clubs to help the smaller organizations and then pleaded for an endowment fund to help with the expenses of the state department.

The main event of the day was the reading of that intensely dramatic play—"The Man of the Hour." Prof. Cochrane stated that he had chosen this play as singularly appropriate at election time, in that it stressed the need for honesty in politics and the desire of the many for civic righteousness in their public servants.

In a very large degree the various characters were clearly drawn, the transition from one to the other being made with ease. The feeling of tense expectancy were amply repaid, for Prof. Cochrane has the ability to build toward a climax so that the audience sat in increasing excitement, waiting to hear whether the hero carries out the promises of the first two acts, or tragically submits to the prevailing graft of the day. That the play was well read was evidenced by the absorbed attention of the listeners. So delightful an afternoon may well be repeated. Altogether, the day was a very real success.

JUDGE A. E. DOE OF PROBATE COURT, STILLWATER, DIES

Stillwater, Minn., Nov. 10.—(UP)—Judge A. E. Doe, judge of probate court in Washington county for 24 years, died suddenly here yesterday.

Judge Doe was 67 years old. He had served on various judicial benches in Stillwater since 1887 when he was first named judge of the municipal court.

He was well known in St. Paul, having filled in on the Ramsey county bench numerous times when sitting judges were ill. He at one time served as U. S. commissioner for the fourth district.

He is survived by his wife and his daughter Mrs. Robert Taylor, Chicago.

Hikers Visit Ruth Lake on Sunday

A group of cars gathered up the hikers of the Brainerd Hiking club Sunday afternoon, taking them to the McKay cottage on Ruth lake. From there the trail was laid for a hike to the government dam, then on to Pike bay. The sunny beach was the resting spot and play ground for the hikers.

The return to the cottage was made by another trail passing near Squaw point on the shores of Gull lake. At the cottage games were played by the light of the fireplace while the supper was being prepared.

On Wednesday evening another hike will be held. Everyone is welcome to come.

PLAN $1,000,000 JOB FUND

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Chicago society woman and chairman of the women's committee of Governor Emmerson's unemployment commission, and George Getz, chairman of the commission, go over the huge program confronting them. The commission plans a $1,000,000 fund to repair streets and for other extra work not provided for in city and state budgets in order to give work to unemployed.

RANGE SYMPHONY MAKES FINE HIT

Concert at Auditorium Sunday Declared One of Best Ever Presented in City

The Range Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Maestro Luigi Lombardi, presented to the Brainerd audience one of the best concerts ever given in the city in its appearance at the Washington high school auditorium yesterday afternoon. Maestro Lombardi proved himself a director of great ability in his complete control over the players. He used good taste in the numbers, choosing a varied program and one to appeal to all lovers of good music.

Miss Carmela Santini, soprano gave a group of three songs, responding with "Just For You" as an encore. She delighted the audience with her songs and received liberal applause.

Mme Ada Lombardi in her fine work at the piano was the outstanding artist in the group of talented musicians. The program from beginning to end was one of exceptional merit.

A full account of the concert will be given in tomorrow's Dispatch.

ARMISTICE DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Legion and Auxiliary to Take Lead in Commemoration of Closing of War

The American Legion and Ladies Auxiliary will lead organizations observing Armistice Day which is declared here a holiday for banks and an afternoon holiday for students.

Special programs are being planned in some of the schools.

Mayor F. E. Little today issued the following proclamation for observance.

"In view of the everlasting significance of the eleventh day of November I believe the city of Brainerd should make it memorable.

"Therefore as Mayor of the City of Brainerd I do hereby request and urge all citizens of the city to suitably decorate their homes, stores and offices and in all ways recognize the eleventh day of November, the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice. And while you observe this day let us not forget the boys who did their bit, by helping the local American Legion who will sponsor a dance Tuesday evening."

The Legion will hold a dinner at the Iron Exchange hall served by the Legion Auxiliary to be followed by a dance in the U. C. T. hall.

The Armistice Day football game between Brainerd and Crosby-Ironton at Crosby will attract many.

The Lincoln Parent Teachers Association meeting will be held Wednesday evening, November 12, instead of Tuesday evening as formerly announced, on account of Armistice Day.

The program, to be followed by the business meeting, will be as follows:

Community singing—Lead by Mrs. Ray Hall.

Violin solo—Lawrence Pelzer, accompanied by Miss Drexler at the piano. Mr. Pelzer is a violinist with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

Talk on Athletics—Wm. H. Dammann.

Vocal solo—Mrs. Ray Hall, accompanied by Miss Drexler.

The membership drive is still on, and anyone who may have been missed, should be sure to renew their membership on Wednesday evening.

The report on the recent carnival given at the Lincoln school will be heard.

A lunch will be served by the lunch committee.

TRAINED PIG WILL COMPETE FOR HONOR

Dykeman Boy Enters "Little Willie" in Showmanship Meet at Junior Livestock Show

OFF FOR SOUTH ST. PAUL

Representative 4-H Members and Entries Make Trip to State Meet Today

Two pigs, three lambs, and poultry, were riding merrily to South St. Paul from Brainerd in a trailer today to take in the Junior Livestock Show with their owners, representative 4-H club boys and girls from this county.

The members wil fare better than the pigs, lambs and poultry, because after the exhibition and competition the farm yard family will be sold to the highest bidders. Their new owners may not be so kind and considerate as have the 4-H club members.

One of the pigs going to South St Paul is receiving especial care. It is owned by Clinton Forester of Dykeman and there's a reason. Clinton determined to teach "Little Willie" with the little corkscrew tail some fine manners. Now with the least flick of a small whip the pig will step dantily to one side. Clinton's has been unable to teach the pig to stand on his hind legs but in spite of this he intends to enter it in the showmanship contest.

Boys and girls making the trip with County Agent E. G. Roth today and their entries are: Clinton Forester, Dykeman, pig; Charles Smith, Lake Edwards, pig; Percy Kagel, Aitkin, lamb; Josephine Brenna, Lake Edwards, lamb; Everett Racine, St. Mathias, lamb; Elaine Cook, Nokay Lake, poultry; Harold Johnson, Emily, poultry; Arne Kivioja, Deerwood, turkey.

The Junior Livestock Show is being held from November 10 to 13, inclusive.

Lieutenant Governor Arens

QUITE a number of persons have been asking about the lieutenant governor-elect and the Dispatch is pleased to publish this editorial from the Minneapolis Journal which casts illuminating light.

Henry Arens was husking corn on his Scott County farm, instead of hanging over precinct tables studying returns, when he got the news of his election as Lieutenant Governor of Minnesota. And that, we believe, is typical of Henry Arens. There doubtless have been other men seeking office as farmer candidates who might hurry into overalls, and pretend to be busy with the chores of husbandry, at the approach of reporters. But not Henry Arens. With him the farm comes first, his own political fortunes second.

Which in no way detracts from Mr. Arens' potential value as Lieutenant Governor. Eight years in the State Senate, with occasional trips to the rostrum as presiding officer, have familiarized him with the duties of his new post. A life time on the farm, and his work as Vice President of the Twin City Milk Producers Association, have familiarized him with both the farmer's production problems and the farmer's marketing problems. Indeed, he is so well qualified in these matters that it is likely Governor-elect Olson would have named him State Commissioner of Agriculture, had he not been victorious at the polls in his quest for the Lieutenant Governorship.

Nor can the election of a Farmer-Labor Lieutenant Governor be looked upon as a political catastrophe, even by staunch Republicans. Inasmuch as Minnesota has chosen a Farmer-Labor Governor, it is just as well that Minnesota also have a Farmer-Labor Lieutenant Governor, to succeed to the gubernatorial chair in the event of the death or disability of his chief.

Minnesotans signified their wish to keep a Democratic Administration in the State Capitol when they re-elected Governor John A. Johnson in 1908, but Mr. Johnson's untimely death gave them a Republican Administration under A. O. Eberhart. They similarly signified their wish for a Democratic Administration when, in 1914, they elected Governor Winfield S. Hammond, but his sudden death gave them a Republican Administration under Mr. Burnquist.

In the Republic's infancy, the losing candidate for President automatically became Vice President, but the incongruity of this plan soon became apparent in practice, and the Twelfth Amendment makes it virtually impossible for a President's death to bring suddenly into power a defeated political party. What is good for the Nation, is good also for a State. It is no more than fitting that a Farmer-Labor Governor should have associated with him, and ready to succeed him in the untoward event of death or disability, a Farmer-Labor Lieutenant Governor.

Old Age Pensions

OLD age pension proposals are being considered by many counties. The fact that there is unemployment, that so many old men are shunted from their jobs to make way for younger men, the further fact that there is an increasing number of old people who through sickness, accident or other contingencies have failed to provide for their older years, has brought the subject of old age pensions to the notice of counties in the state.

The old age pension law has apparently been adopted by the voters of Ramsey county at the general election last Tuesday, but cannot become effective until 1932. This was announced Saturday by George J. Rise, county auditor of Ramsey county, who said that inasmuch as no funds had been provided for 1931 the board of County Commissioners would be unable to provide money until the 1932 budget becomes effective.

The pension will be administered by the judges of the Ramsey County District Court, although the County Commissioners probably will set up some agency, such as the Board of Public Welfare, to aid the Court in investigations and detailed work.

Under the terms of the Pension Law a person more than 70 years old and with no other support may be granted a maximum pension of $1 a day. Should such a person leave an estate the money which he has been given with simple interest at 3 per cent a year may be claimed by the county.

Dr. G. A. Lundquist, secretary of the Board of Public Welfare, who made an investigation of the pension plan in Ramsey County, announced several weeks ago that the pension probably would cost the county $112,000 the first year, with this amount gradually increasing. This would mean a tax increase of approximately .6 of a mill.

Mayor Bundlie said Saturday that he would ask the Judges of the District Court to confer with the County Commissioners and the Board of Public Welfare with a view to working out plans for machinery to handle the pension work and also to make a budget request computation for the 1932 budget.

The old age pension proposal in Stearns county was lost by the narrow margin of 18 votes, according to the official report of the canvassing board, reviewing the returns of Tuesday's general election.

There has been much inquiry in Brainerd and Crow Wing county about old age pensions, but as will be noticed, each county must act favorably on the state law to make the proposal effective and the funds must be supplied by such county.

Armistice Day

TOMORROW is Armistice Day. That holiday conveys to all a message that peace should be sought for by all means possible. The obligations of that day are best expressed by the American Legion, born at the dawn of peace after a great World War had drenched the earth with blood.

"For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of Justice, Freedom and Democracy; and to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by devotion to mutual helpfulness."

The terrible results of the World War are still in evidence with many soldier boys in hospitals, shattered in mind and body; with many suffering disabilities; with others handicapped from enjoying an active life. Those who went to the front in that war know what it means and are in many cases the strongest advocates of peace.

Here in America we have the sentiment for peace coupled with necessary preparedness to meet a vital attack. As a city has its police force, the county its sheriff and deputies, the community its constables, so must the nation at large have its army and navy and auxiliaries ready to meet emergencies should our existence as a nation be threatened. America provides for defense but not one degree for aggression.

NINETY DISASTERS CALL FOR RED CROSS RELIEF, AT COST OF $1,200,000

Vice Chairman Fieser Cites Readiness to Act of National Society, Which Lessens Loss of Life—3,500 Chapters Aid in Work.

Readiness to act in an emergency, should a disaster strike, has become part of the Red Cross Chapter program in thousands of communities. The need for this training of local committees was revealed last year, when more than ninety communities required disaster relief work by the Red Cross.

As in former years, tornadoes brought the greatest damage. Twenty-four serious tornadoes occurred. Fire also took toll of life and property in twenty-four communities. Seven forest fires did great damage; eighteen areas were affected by floods, and nine storms caused heavy losses. Other disasters were cloudbursts, cyclones, epidemics, mine explosions and shipwrecks. In the insular possessions of the United States the Red Cross gave relief in twelve disasters, chiefly from hurricanes. In foreign countries relief was given by the American Red Cross in six instances of earthquakes, floods and to refugees.

The disaster relief work of the Red Cross cost $1,208,151 last year. Statistics showed an approximate death rate of 790 persons in these disasters; buildings destroyed or damaged, 19,578; persons injured, 1,487, and persons assisted by the Red Cross, 96,872.

Through disaster preparedness of Red Cross Chapters, undoubtedly great numbers of lives were saved, and much distress and grief following the calamities was prevented, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations of the Red Cross.

"This type of work is supported by the memberships of citizens of the United States, their volunteer contributions, and their devoted work," Mr. Fieser said.

"Every man and woman is urged to join as a member of the local Red Cross Chapter, not only to be a partner in supporting the work through his membership, but also to serve should an emergency occur."

Life Savers Numerous

More than a quarter of a million persons are entitled to wear the American Red Cross insignia, denoting they have been taught the expert life saving methods of the organization. The number enrolled to date is 273,502.

"Join Red Cross," Urges Vice President Curtis

America's prominent citizens join in urging all men and women to become members of the Red Cross during the period of the annual roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

The Honorable Charles Curtis, Vice President of the United States, says: "The American Red Cross is in a position to and does more to relieve those stricken by misfortune than any other organization in the world. Its splendid work has done much to bring a friendly feeling in all parts of the world for the people of our country because they sustain the American Red Cross. This wonderful organization is entitled to the liberal support of our people."

The Honorable Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, says: "No one can predict when or where disaster may occur or acute emergency arise. The American Red Cross represents our community insurance against such misfortunes. The organization stands ready at all times to render speedy relief to any stricken area in the relief of disaster in foreign countries. The Red Cross is the agency which carries on when emergency has disrupted customary modes and means of life in a community."

Six Foreign Countries Receive Red Cross Aid

Relief was given by the American Red Cross during the year in six foreign nations in disasters ranging from a tidal wave in Newfoundland, an earthquake in Persia, floods in France, to help the refugees from Russia and prevention of a smallpox epidemic in Costa Rica.

The $5,000 Red Cross contribution to Newfoundland, following the tidal wave, which took twenty-six lives and destroyed many homes and fishing boats, was the first from an outside country to reach the distressed people.

The sum of $5,000 was given to the fund for the relief of the Mennonite refugees of German descent, who had determined to leave Russia for new lands. About 13,000 passed through Germany, where the German Red Cross, aided by Red Cross societies of other nations, helped them. The majority are being transported to new countries in the western world and the American Red Cross has transmitted contributions from individuals in this country.

When Costa Rica was menaced by a smallpox epidemic, the American Red Cross sent fifty thousand tubes of vaccine, in two airplane loads, undoubtedly saving the country from a serious outbreak of the dread disease.

Bad Milkmen Drank Own Milk

That it would be a good idea to revive the Fifteenth-century method of dealing with crooked milkmen was mentioned recently in Paris. In those days, it was told, if a milk dealer put water into his milk, a funnel was placed in his mouth and his own watered stock poured into it until the doctors decided that he could stand no more.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"It's the little things that tell"

That's what big sister said to her boy friend as she pulled little brother out from under the sofa. But wait till big sister and the boy friend are man and wife, with a home of their own to run. Then how much more she'll realize the truth of her observation!

For then the age old problems will come pressing hard. So much in the pocketbook. So much on the shopping list. Will it fit? Then's when the little things make the big difference. The little savings—the small economies—the slightly better values of which a good housekeeper takes advantage.

Then's when big sister will read the advertisements as she never read them before. Comparing values; learning reliable brands; watching the bargain and reduction announcements. . . . The advertisements will help her in a thousand ways to take care of the little things, acquire the little short-cuts in time and effort—in the big job of running a home.

Lieutenant Governor Arens

QUITE a number of persons have been asking about the lieutenant governor-elect and the Dispatch is pleased to publish this editorial from the Minneapolis Journal which casts illuminating light.

Henry Arens was husking corn on his Scott County farm, instead of hanging over precinct tables studying returns, when he got the news of his election as Lieutenant Governor of Minnesota. And that, we believe, is typical of Henry Arens. There doubtless have been other men seeking office as farmer candidates who might hurry into overalls, and pretend to be busy with the chores of husbandry, at the approach of reporters. But not Henry Arens. With him the farm comes first, his own political fortunes second.

Which in no way detracts from Mr. Arens' potential value as Lieutenant Governor. Eight years in the State Senate, with occasional trips to the rostrum as presiding officer, have familiarized him with the duties of his new post. A life time on the farm, and his work as Vice President of the Twin City Milk Producers Association, have familiarized him with both the farmer's production problems and the farmer's marketing problems. Indeed, he is so well qualified in these matters that it is likely Governor-elect Olson would have named him State Commissioner of Agriculture, had he not been victorious at the polls in his quest for the Lieutenant Governorship.

Nor can the election of a Farmer-Labor Lieutenant Governor be looked upon as a political catastrophe, even by staunch Republicans. Inasmuch as Minnesota has chosen a Farmer-Labor Governor, it is just as well that Minnesota also have a Farmer-Labor Lieutenant Governor, to succeed to the gubernatorial chair in the event of the death or disability of his chief.

Minnesotans signified their wish to keep a Democratic Administration in the State Capitol when they re-elected Governor John A. Johnson in 1908, but Mr. Johnson's untimely death gave them a Republican Administration under A. O. Eberhart. They similarly signified their wish for a Democratic Administration when, in 1914, they elected Governor Winfield S. Hammond, but his sudden death gave them a Republican Administration under Mr. Burnquist.

In the Republic's infancy, the losing candidate for President automatically became Vice President, but the incongruity of this plan soon became apparent in practice, and the Twelfth Amendment makes it virtually impossible for a President's death to bring suddenly into power a defeated political party. What is good for the Nation, is good also for a State. It is no more than fitting that a Farmer-Labor Governor should have associated with him, and ready to succeed him in the untoward event of death or disability, a Farmer-Labor Lieutenant Governor.

Old Age Pensions

OLD age pension proposals are being considered by many counties. The fact that there is unemployment, that so many old men are shunted from their jobs to make way for younger men, the further fact that there is an increasing number of old people who through sickness, accident or other contingencies have failed to provide for their older years, has brought the subject of old age pensions to the notice of counties in the state.

The old age pension law has apparently been adopted by the voters of Ramsey county at the general election last Tuesday, but cannot become effective until 1932. This was announced Saturday by George J. Rise, county auditor of Ramsey county, who said that inasmuch as no funds had been provided for 1931 the board of County Commissioners would be unable to provide money until the 1932 budget becomes effective.

The pension will be administered by the judges of the Ramsey County District Court, although the County Commissioners probably will set up some agency, such as the Board of Public Welfare, to aid the Court in investigations and detailed work.

Under the terms of the Pension Law a person more than 70 years old and with no other support may be granted a maximum pension of $1 a day. Should such a person leave an estate the money which he has been given with simple interest at 3 per cent a year may be claimed by the county.

Dr. G. A. Lundquist, secretary of the Board of Public Welfare, who made an investigation of the pension plan in Ramsey County, announced several weeks ago that the pension probably would cost the county $112,000 the first year, with this amount gradually increasing. This would mean a tax increase of approximately .6 of a mill.

Mayor Bundlie said Saturday that he would ask the Judges of the District Court to confer with the County Commissioners and the Board of Public Welfare with a view to working out plans for machinery to handle the pension work and also to make a budget request computation for the 1932 budget.

The old age pension proposal in Stearns county was lost by the narrow margin of 18 votes, according to the official report of the canvassing board, reviewing the returns of Tuesday's general election.

There has been much inquiry in Brainerd and Crow Wing county about old age pensions, but as will be noticed, each county must act favorably on the state law to make the proposal effective and the funds must be supplied by such county.

Armistice Day

TOMORROW is Armistice Day. That holiday conveys to all a message that peace should be sought for by all means possible. The obligations of that day are best expressed by the American Legion, born at the dawn of peace after a great World War had drenched the earth with blood.

"For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of Justice, Freedom and Democracy; and to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by devotion to mutual helpfulness."

The terrible results of the World War are still in evidence with many soldier boys in hospitals, shattered in mind and body; with many suffering disabilities; with others handicapped from enjoying an active life. Those who went to the front in that war know what it means and are in many cases the strongest advocates of peace.

Here in America we have the sentiment for peace coupled with necessary preparedness to meet a vital attack. As a city has its police force, the county its sheriff and deputies, the community its constables, so must the nation at large have its army and navy and auxiliaries ready to meet emergencies should our existence as a nation be threatened. America provides for defense but not one degree for aggression.

NINETY DISASTERS CALL FOR RED CROSS RELIEF, AT COST OF $1,200,000

Vice Chairman Fieser Cites Readiness to Act of National Society, Which Lessens Loss of Life—3,500 Chapters Aid in Work.

Readiness to act in an emergency, should a disaster strike, has become part of the Red Cross Chapter program in thousands of communities. The need for this training of local committees was revealed last year, when more than ninety communities required disaster relief work by the Red Cross.

As in former years, tornadoes brought the greatest damage. Twenty-four serious tornadoes occurred. Fire also took toll of life and property in twenty-four communities. Seven forest fires did great damage; eighteen areas were affected by floods, and nine storms caused heavy losses. Other disasters were cloudbursts, cyclones, epidemics, mine explosions and shipwrecks. In the insular possessions of the United States the Red Cross gave relief in twelve disasters, chiefly from hurricanes. In foreign countries relief was given by the American Red Cross in six instances of earthquakes, floods and to refugees.

The disaster relief work of the Red Cross cost $1,208,151 last year. Statistics showed an approximate death rate of 790 persons in these disasters; buildings destroyed or damaged, 19,578; persons injured, 1,487, and persons assisted by the Red Cross, 96,872.

Through disaster preparedness of Red Cross Chapters, undoubtedly great numbers of lives were saved, and much distress and grief following the calamities was prevented, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations of the Red Cross.

"This type of work is supported by the memberships of citizens of the United States, their volunteer contributions, and their devoted work," Mr. Fieser said.

"Every man and woman is urged to join as a member of the local Red Cross Chapter, not only to be a partner in supporting the work through his membership, but also to serve should an emergency occur."

Life Savers Numerous

More than a quarter of a million persons are entitled to wear the American Red Cross insignia, denoting they have been taught the expert life saving methods of the organization. The number enrolled to date is 273,202.

"Join Red Cross," Urges Vice President Curtis

America's prominent citizens join in urging all men and women to become members of the Red Cross during the period of the annual roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

The Honorable Charles Curtis, Vice President of the United States, says: "The American Red Cross is in a position to and does more to relieve those stricken by misfortune than any other organization in the world. Its splendid work has done much to bring a friendly feeling in all parts of the world for the people of our country because they sustain the American Red Cross. This wonderful organization is entitled to the liberal support of our people."

The Honorable Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, says: "No one can predict when or where disaster may occur or acute emergency arise. The American Red Cross represents our community insurance against such misfortunes. The organization stands ready at all times to render speedy relief to any stricken area in the relief of disaster in foreign countries. The Red Cross is the agency which carries on when emergency has disrupted customary modes and means of life in a community."

Six Foreign Countries Receive Red Cross Aid

Relief was given by the American Red Cross during the year in six foreign nations in disasters ranging from a tidal wave in Newfoundland, an earthquake in Persia, floods in France, to help the refugees from Russia and prevention of a smallpox epidemic in Costa Rica.

The $5,000 Red Cross contribution to Newfoundland, following the tidal wave, which took twenty-six lives and destroyed many homes and fishing boats, was the first from an outside country to reach the distressed people.

The sum of $5,000 was given to the fund for the relief of the Mennonite refugees of German descent, who had determined to leave Russia for new lands. About 13,000 passed through Germany, where the German Red Cross, aided by Red Cross societies of other nations, helped them. The majority are being transported to new countries in the western world and the American Red Cross has transmitted contributions from individuals in this country.

When Costa Rica was menaced by a smallpox epidemic, the American Red Cross sent fifty thousand tubes of vaccine, in two airplane loads, undoubtedly saving the country from a serious outbreak of the dread disease.

Bad Milkmen Drank Own Milk

That it would be a good idea to revive the Fifteenth-century method of dealing with crooked milkmen was mentioned recently in Paris. In those days, it was told, if a milk dealer put water into his milk, a funnel was placed in his mouth and his own watered stock poured into it until the doctors decided that he could stand no more.

WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA HOLD KEY POSITIONS IN BIG TEN

NOTRE DAME AND NORTHWESTERN IN FEATURE ROLE

BIG TEN TEAMS HAVE 2 WEEKS OF COMPETITION REMAINING

MICHIGAN RISKS CHAMPIONSHIP AGAINST GOPHERS THIS WEEK

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Wisconsin and Minnesota held the key positions today as Big Ten teams turned their attention from intersectional competition to the settling of the 1930 conference championship.

With last week's eastern invasion establishing middle western football superiority, national interest is now centered on the farm belt teams, with Notre Dame and Northwestern holding the feature role because of their national champinoship aspirations.

Big Ten teams have two weeks of competition remaining and with three teams still in the running for honors the championship may not be decided until the final games are played—if then.

Northwestern, pre-season favorite, already has scored four victories and if successful in its final Big Ten contest with Wisconsin Saturday will be assured of at least a tie for the title. The Wildcats are strong favorites over Wisconsin and expect to enter their final game with Notre Dame Nov. 22 as contender for the mythical national championship.

Michigan, only other undefeated conference team, risks its championship chances this week against a rapidly improving Minnesota club. If the Wolverines pass this test successfully they should have little trouble in their finale with Chicago Nov. 22, and will be expected to complete the season with a record of five victories and no defeats.

Purdue, third contender for honors, cannot take the crown unless both Northwestern and Michigan are defeated. The Boilermakers have won four straight conference victories since losing their opener to Michigan, 14 to 13, and a victory over Indiana Nov. 22, will give them the title on a percentage basis if both of the other contenders lose one of the remaining games. Purdue will be absent from Big Ten competition this week, playing Butler in a non-conference game.

Wisconsin and Minnesota, key teams of the race, prepared for their big tests last week by playing easy games with South Dakota State and South Dakota, while their forthcomng rivals met more strenuous opposition. Wisconsin romped to a 58 to 7 decision while Minnesota piled up a 59 to 0 count.

Northwestern had little trouble defeating Indiana, 25 to 0, and will be at top form for its engagements with Wisconsin and Notre Dame. Other games Saturday had no bearing on the race. Purdue wallowed Chicago, 26 to 7, in the second conference game while Iowa's improved team dropped a 7 to 0 decision to the undefeated Marquette eleven in the only other western game involving Big Ten teams.

The Big Ten's eastern invasion brought two victories and a defeat. Ohio State swamped Navy 27 to 0 while Michigan outsmarted Harvard, 6 to 3, with Illinois' weak team holding Army to a 13 to 0 count. Notre Dame's contribution to the invasion was a 60 to 20 triumph over Penn.

This week's schedule includes the two games involving title contenders, Purdue's "breather" with Butler, a third conference game, Illinois vs. Chicago, and two intersectional tests with Penn State visiting Iowa and Pittsburgh invading Ohio State. Notre Dame will play host to Drake in what should be the Irish team's easiest game of the year.

Big Ten Resume

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.

REVEALS THE SECRET OF NOTRE DAME'S SUCCESS

GETTY SITS ON BENCH ALONGSIDE KNUTE ROCKNE

WHILE PENNSYLVANIA WAS BEATEN, 60 TO 20, ON SATURDAY

SPIRIT, COACHING AND MATERIAL SPELL VICTORY FOR THE IRISH

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

(Copyright, 1930, by United Press)

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10.—The secret of Notre Dame's success this season, as revealed to this writer in a close-up from the Irish bench, alongside Knute Rockne, while Pennsylvania was beaten 60 to 20 Saturday, is three-fold.

Spirit, coaching and material, put them in whatever order you choose, spell victory for Notre Dame.

Huddled in a blanket on the Irish bench at the Penn game, surrounded by stalwart South Bend substitutes, I took nearly as much of a beating as the U. of P. boys during the opening minutes of play. These 200-pounders around me were in every play, like a prize fighter's sceond during an exciting round. They heaved against me, digging with elbows and knees, champing down big cleated shoes, taking out Pennsylvania interferers, playing the game themselves.

Finally, after a series of Notre Dame touchdowns had relieved the tension, the boys around me cased up, and I was able to analyze a little, to listen to Rockne's instructions to his players and observe just how an Irish squad carried on during the 60 minutes of battle.

One thing was made clear at the start. Knute Rockne teaches his boys their football during the week. On Saturday's, they have to play it for themselves. There is no "master minding" from the Irish bench while the game is on. Any "inside football" is played between the side-lines.

The Notre Dame dressing room before the game is a dim recess in under the towering stands, with nervous priests and South Bend enthusiasts on guard at the entrances and a strained silence in which you could hear a pair of those silk football pants drop. The players loll around, waiting in the semi-darkness.

Then Rockne enters. Through the half opened door, a burst of cheering announces Penn is on the field.

The coach starts to speak, sharply, incisively, clipping his words as his voice rises. He is touching the spark to the explosion.

"All right!" he barks. "On your toes everybody!" His voice rises almost to a scream. "Come on!"

And out they come, stumbling on cleated shoes over the concrete runway and into the daylight, to be swallowed quickly in blankets on the bench or lying at Rockne's feet, save for the eleven men who run onto the field. The coach looks wan, rather tired. His illness is less comfortable than he makes out.

The game starts and the substitutes start with it. With elbows and knees they pound and sway, following the course of the ball. They seem hypnotized with emotions aroused during the tense period of waiting and Rockne's magnetic words. But they can be analytical, too.

A Notre Dame player is smeared beneath a pile of red and blue.

"Look at 'em pile on," remarks Emmett Leahy, a substitute back who sits beside me, to big Dick Donohue, the guard. There is no resentment in the remark.

"Stepped right on his neck," replies Donohue, and grins.

Rockne looks on, unmoved, twiddling a newspaper in his ungloved hands, saying nothing.

Then Marty Brill, the boy who tried for this same Penn team several years ago, races 64 yards through the red and blue for a touchdown.

The bench is pandemonium. The subs fling off their blankets. They are all out there, flying across the white marks, straining, shifting, running with Marty. They may be rooted to their places on the parked bench, but they don't know it. For the moment, each is Marty Brill, with a ball clutched to his breast.

"Atta boy! Yeah, Marty!" they cry as the teams trot back.

"He's the best all-around football player in America," appraises one substitute and there is a clamor of assent.

Rockne merely grins. The excitement subsides a bit. One sub lineman who never may know what it means to carry a ball like that turns to a team mate.

"Wasn't that great?" he asks, mildly, eyes shining.

There is occasion for a substitution and Rockne speaks aloud for the first time.

"Hey, Kosky!" The big end strips off his sweater, helped by two tugging assistant managers. There are no words of advice from the coach, no communication from the teams. Just a friendly slap on the rump with a folded newspaper. The player who has been replaced trots up, steaming.

"Feel tired, Paul?" asks Rockne.

"Naw!"

Then big Schwartz plunges over for another touchdown and the bench whoops and cheers. They are quieting down now, however, as it becomes apparent that the game is won. From toes to ribs, I am grateful.

"Savoldi!" the coach calls suddenly. Big Joe stumbles over his feet in his haste, struggling with his sweater. A sweating fullback returns to the bench, eyeing Rockne rather anxiously. The coach pats him with the newspaper and fixes his gaze and mind on the game. He carries it all in his head, making no notes, no comments to amount to much, knowing instinctively the substitutions he wants to make, but leaving the playing to the boys.

A Notre Dame end clutches a forward pass, juggles it and drops it.

"O ——!" exclaims an excited sub, who then glances hurriedly to where a priest sits among the players in the back row. The priest is obligingly deaf, intent on the game.

Engle of Pennsylvania comes skimming around end for a long gain.

"Nice run, nice run," chatter the Notre Dame subs, aloud. Rockne switches his ends and the one who is taken out stops at the bench to advise another substitute about a Penn player.

Brill intercepts a forward pass and is thrown heavily.

Rockne for the first time jumps to his feet and takes a few strides towards the side-line.

"O'Connor," he summons a substitute back. "Go in there. Don't say a word. Just hold the ball."

On the first play, O'Connor takes the ball and runs 64 yards for a touchdown. The stands credit Rockne with "master minding."

"Just play your normal game, boy!"

No secret, inside stuff. No suggestions for a play or instructions to the quarterback.

Odd Form of Currency in Early Fur Trading

In the old days the Indian trappers took their furs regularly to the nearest fort and were sometimes five months in making the round trip, says an article in the Wisconsin State Journal. It was not uncommon, in times when independent traders, employing "runners of the woods," entered into competition with the factors of the Hudson's Bay company in Canada for an Indian to make a journey of 50 miles, if by doing so, he could obtain an extra pound of gunpowder.

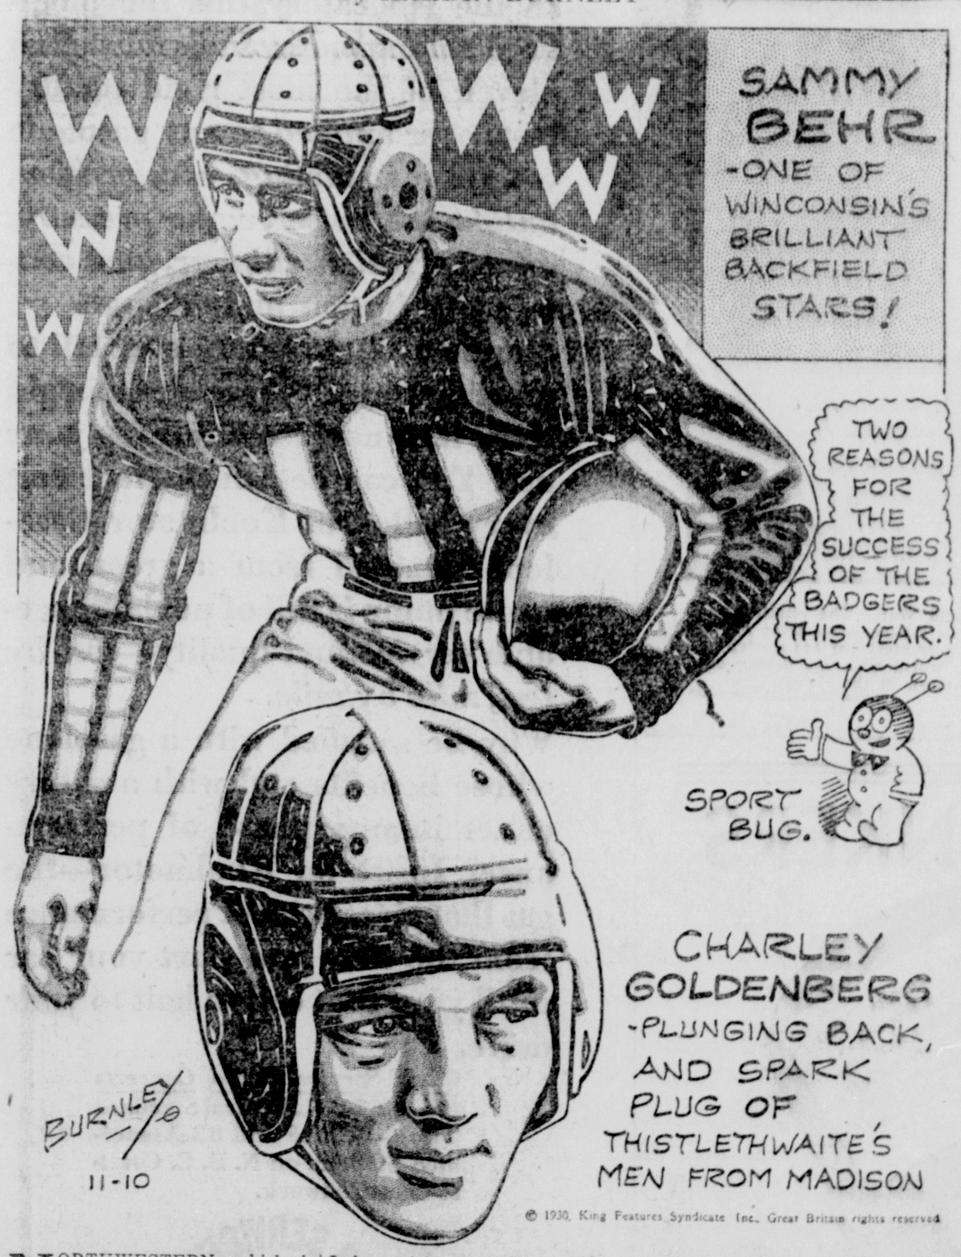

Indians usually traveled in companies on their long canoe trips to barter their season's catch of furs. When they arrived at a fort or post the factor seldom allowed more than two of his red customers to enter his storeroom at one time. When an Indian brought in his pelts he was given a carved stick or other token termed a "Made-beaver," being equal in value to a prime beaver skin, so that this "Made-beaver" was the standard of value. After the value of furs had been estimated and he held his "Made-beaver" token, the Indian proceeded to buy his goods for next season.

Revocation of Rights Forced Out Huguenots

The Huguenots were the Puritans of France in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries. The name was first used about 1560; its origin is unknown. The Huguenots suffered severely in the reign of Francis I and his immediate successors, and after 1532 were frequently involved in war, under the leadership of such men as Admiral Coligny and King Henry of Navarre, afterward Henry IV of France. Coligny and from 20,000 to 30,000 others fell in the massacre of St. Bartholomew, August 24, 1572. In spite of all this, they continued numerous and powerful and the Edict of Nantes, issued in 1593 by Henry IV, gave them full political and civil rights. Their power was broken after the surrender of La Rochelle and the revocation of the Edict of Nantes by Louis XIV, in 1685, and hundreds of thousands of Huguenots went into exile, going to Prussia, Holland, Switzerland, England, Scotland and the New world.

NORTHWESTERN, which is considered by many critics to have the most powerful team in the "Big Ten" Conference, will have that estimate of its greatness thoroughly tested Saturday, when a far above average Wisconsin team visits Evanston, Ill. Purdue beat the Badgers, 7 to 6, on Oct. 25, in a bitterly and evenly waged battle in which the losers were all but on a par with the victors. Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite undoubtedly has improved Wisconsin since then, so that Northwestern will have to be truly great to win Saturday.

Not even Notre Dame has more of a "team of all nations," than has Wisconsin which numbers among its stars, a Duluth husky of Serbian extraction named Milo Lubratovich, a wonder tackle; a Milwaukee Jew, Charles ("Buckets") Goldenberg, a plunging back who batters and laughs his way jestingly through tough opposition, and a variegated collection of Germans, Poles, Slavs, etc., which pretty near reaches apogee with a track team sprinter named McGuire who was born in Hawaii!

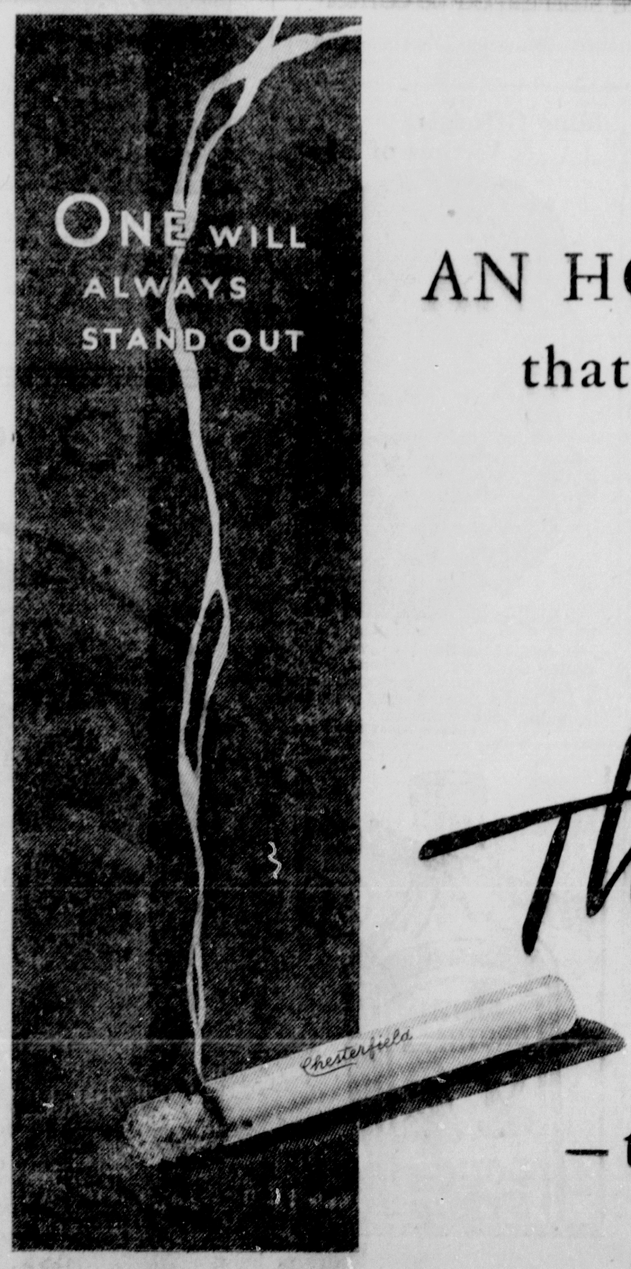

With Lubratovich back in 1928 form and looming like Primo Carnera in the line, Wisconsin has a first-class set of backs, featuring the crashing comedian, "Buckets" Goldenberg; Sammy Behr, Russ Rebholtz and John Schneller. The Badgers also have an extra good center in Krueger.

Coach Thistlethwaite switched Wisconsin to the Stanford style of attack in the middle of last season and his team thus far has employed it with great efficiency. Goldenberg, Behr & Co. are slashing, smashing backs—just the type for which "Pop" Warner devised his fast formations.

Goldenberg—who has the physical might and looks as ferocious as Lou Wolheim does as the hard-boiled top sergeant in "What Price Glory?"—is likely to become famed as one of the grid's keenest kidders. He's by far one of the most genial wags ever to attempt a goat-getting role and the hardest sort of going seems but a frolic to "Buckets."

Goldenberg does about everything but an Al Jolson mammy song when going over for a touchdown!

WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA HOLD KEY POSITIONS IN BIG TEN

NOTRE DAME AND NORTHWESTERN IN FEATURE ROLE

BIG TEN TEAMS HAVE 2 WEEKS OF COMPETITION REMAINING

MICHIGAN RISKS CHAMPIONSHIP AGAINST GOPHERS THIS WEEK

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Wisconsin and Minnesota held the key positions today as Big Ten teams turned their attention from intersectional competition to the settling of the 1930 conference championship.

With last week's eastern invasion establishing middle western football superiority, national interest is now centered on the farm belt teams, with Notre Dame and Northwestern holding the feature role because of their national champinoship aspirations.

Big Ten teams have two weeks of competition remaining and with three teams still in the running for honors the championship may not be decided until the final games are played—if then.

Northwestern, pre-season favorite, already has scored four victories and if successful in its final Big Ten contest with Wisconsin Saturday will be assured of at least a tie for the title. The Wildcats are strong favorites over Wisconsin and expect to enter their final game with Notre Dame Nov. 22 as contender for the mythical national championship.

Michigan, only other undefeated conference team, risks its championship chances this week against a rapidly improving Minnesota club. If the Wolverines pass this test successfully they should have little trouble in their finale with Chicago Nov. 22, and will be expected to complete the season with a record of five victories and no defeats.

Purdue, third contender for honors, cannot take the crown unless both Northwestern and Michigan are defeated. The Boilermakers have won four straight conference victories since losing their opener to Michigan, 14 to 13, and a victory over Indiana Nov. 22, will give them the title on a percentage basis if both of the other contenders lose one of the remaining games. Purdue will be absent from Big Ten competition this week, playing Butler in a non-conference game.

Wisconsin and Minnesota, key teams of the race, prepared for their big tests last week by playing easy games with South Dakota State and South Dakota, while their forthcomng rivals met more strenuous opposition. Wisconsin romped to a 58 to 7 decision while Minnesota piled up a 59 to 0 count.

Northwestern had little trouble defeating Indiana, 25 to 0, and will be at top form for its engagements with Wisconsin and Notre Dame. Other games Saturday had no bearing on the race. Purdue wallowed Chicago, 26 to 7, in the second conference game while Iowa's improved team dropped a 7 to 0 decision to the undefeated Marquette eleven in the only other western game involving Big Ten teams.

The Big Ten's eastern invasion brought two victories and a defeat. Ohio State swamped Navy 27 to 0 while Michigan outsmarted Harvard, 6 to 3, with Illinois' weak team holding Army to a 13 to 0 count. Notre Dame's contribution to the invasion was a 60 to 20 triumph over Penn.

This week's schedule includes the two games involving title contenders, Purdue's "breather" with Butler, a third conference game, Illinois vs. Chicago, and two intersectional tests with Penn State visiting Iowa and Pittsburgh invading Ohio State. Notre Dame will play host to Drake in what should be the Irish team's easiest game of the year.

Big Ten Resume

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Northwestern	4	0	0	1.000
Michigan	3	0	0	1.000
Purdue	4	1	0	.800
Minnesota	1	1	0	.500
Wisconsin	1	1	1	.500
Ohio State	1	2	1	.333
Iowa	0	1	0	.000
Illinois	0	3	0	.000
Indiana	0	3	0	.000
Chicago	0	2	0	.000

Last week's conference results:

Northwestern, 25; Indiana, 0.

Purdue, 26; Chicago, 7.

Non-conference:

Michigan, 6; Harvard, 3.

Ohio State, 27; Navy, 0.

Army, 13; Illinois, 0.

Marquette, 7; Iowa, 0.

Wisconsin, 58; South Dakota State, 7.

Minnesota, 59; South Dakota U, 0.

This week's conference games:

Wisconsin vs. Northwestern, at Evanston.

Minnesota vs. Michigan, at Ann Arbor.

Illinois vs. Chicago at Chicago.

Non-conference:

Pittsburgh vs. Ohio State at Columbus.

Penn State vs. Iowa at Iowa City.

Butler vs. Purdue at LaFayette.

South—Alabama.

Far West—Oregon, Utah, Washington State.

REVEALS THE SECRET OF NOTRE DAME'S SUCCESS

GETTY SITS ON BENCH ALONGSIDE KNUTE ROCKNE

WHILE PENNSYLVANIA WAS BEATEN, 60 TO 20, ON SATURDAY

SPIRIT, COACHING AND MATERIAL SPELL VICTORY FOR THE IRISH

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
(Copyright, 1930, by United Press)

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10.—The secret of Notre Dame's success this season, as revealed to this writer in a close-up from the Irish bench, alongside Knute Rockne, while Pennsylvania was beaten 60 to 20 Saturday, is three-fold.

Spirit, coaching and material, put them in whatever order you choose, spell victory for Notre Dame.

Huddled in a blanket on the Irish bench at the Penn game, surrounded by stalwart South Bend substitutes, I took nearly as much of a beating as the U. of P. boys during the opening minutes of play. These 200-pounders around me were in every play, like a prize fighter's sceond during an exciting round. They heaved against me, digging with elbows and knees, champing down big cleated shoes, taking out Pennsylvania interferers, playing the game themselves.

Finally, after a series of Notre Dame touchdowns had relieved the tension, the boys around me eased up, and I was able to analyze a little, to listen to Rockne's instructions to his players and observe just how an Irish squad carried on during the 60 minutes of battle.

One thing was made clear at the start. Knute Rockne teaches his boys their football during the week. On Saturday's, they have to play it for themselves. There is no "master minding" from the Irish bench while the game is on. Any "inside football" is played between the side-lines.

The Notre Dame dressing room before the game is a dim recess in under the towering stands, with nervous priests and South Bend enthusiasts on guard at the entrances and a strained silence in which you could hear a pair of those silk football pants drop. The players loll around, waiting in the semi-darkness.

Then Rockne enters. Through the half opened door, a burst of cheering announces Penn is on the field.

The coach starts to speak, sharply, incisively, clipping his words as his voice rises. He is touching the spark to the explosion.

"All right!" he barks. "On your toes everybody!" His voice rises almost to a scream. "Come on!"

And out they come, stumbling on cleated shoes over the concrete runway and into the daylight, to be swallowed quickly in blankets on the bench or lying at Rockne's feet, save for the eleven men who run onto the field. The coach looks wan, rather tired. His illness is less comfortable than he makes out.

The game starts and the substitutes start with it. With elbows and knees they pound and sway, following the course of the ball. They seem hypnotized with emotions aroused during the tense period of waiting and Rockne's magnetic words. But they can be analytical, too.

A Notre Dame player is smeared beneath a pile of red and blue.

"Look at 'em pile on," remarks Emmett Leahy, a substitute back who sits beside me, to big Dick Donohue, the guard. There is no resentment in the remark.

"Stepped right on his neck," replies Donohue, and grins.

Rockne looks on, unmoved, twiddling a newspaper in his ungloved hands, saying nothing.

Then Marty Brill, the boy who tried for this same Penn team several years ago, races 64 yards through the red and blue for a touchdown.

The bench is pandemonium. The subs fling off their blankets. They are all out there, flying across the white marks, straining, shifting, running with Marty. They may be rooted to their places on the parked bench, but they don't know it. For the moment, each is Marty Brill, with a ball clutched to his breast.

"Atta boy! Yeah, Marty!" they cry as the teams trot back.

"He's the best all-around football player in America," appraises one substitute and there is a clamor of assent.

Rockne merely grins. The excitement subsides a bit. One sub lineman who never may know what it means to carry a ball like that turns to a team mate.

"Wasn't that great?" he asks, mildly, eyes shining.

There is occasion for a substitution and Rockne speaks aloud for the first time.

"Hey, Kosky!" The big end strips off his sweater, helped by two tugging assistant managers. There are no words of advice from the coach, no communication from the teams. Just a friendly slap on the rump with a folded newspaper. The player who has been replaced trots up, steaming.

"Feel tired, Paul?" asks Rockne.

"Naw!"

Then big Schwartz plunges over for another touchdown and the bench whoops and cheers. They are quieting down now, however, as it becomes apparent that the game is won. From toes to ribs, I am grateful.

"Savoldi!" the coach calls suddenly. Big Joe stumbles over his feet in his haste, struggling with his sweater. A sweating fullback returns to the bench, eyeing Rockne rather anxiously. The coach pats him with the newspaper and fixes his gaze and mind on the game. He carries it all in his head, making no notes, no comments to amount to much, knowing instinctively the substitutions he wants to make, but leaving the playing to the boys.

A Notre Dame end clutches a forward pass, juggles it and drops it.

"O ——!" exclaims an excited sub, who then glances hurriedly to where a priest sits among the players in the back row. The priest is obligingly deaf, intent on the game.

Engle of Pennsylvania comes skimming around end for a long gain.

"Nice run, nice run," chatter the Notre Dame subs, aloud. Rockne switches his ends and the one who is taken out stops at the bench to advise another substitute about a Penn player.

Brill intercepts a forward pass and is thrown heavily.

Rockne for the first time jumps to his feet and takes a few strides towards the side-line.

"O'Connor," he summons a substitute back. "Go in there. Don't say a word. Just hold the ball."

On the first play, O'Connor takes the ball and runs 64 yards for a touchdown. The stands credit Rockne with "master minding."

"Just play your normal game, boy!"

PRESBYTERIAN HOMECOMING DAY

7th Anniversary of Pastor With the Church Also Observed at 1st Presbyterian Church Sunday

LARGE ATTENDANCE PRESENT

Original Poem Composed for Occasion by Pastor and Hymn is Sung by Will Anderson

Home Coming Day and the seventh anniversary of the pastor, Rev. A. G. Patterson, were observed at the First Presbyterian church yesterday. Organizations of the church participating were the Sabbath school, ladies' aid, woman's missionary society, junior and intermediate Christian Endeavor and the Men's club, the congregation generally and a large group of friends.

A large audience was present in which there were many who had some time attended the church and came home for the occasion. The flowers were a gift of Mrs. A. C. Erickson. Mrs. Nels Johnson of Pine River and a former member, sang, "My Task."

The pastor's text was found in I Chronicles 16th chapter, "Make known his doings among the people. Remember his covenant forever, the covenant he made when ye were but a few men in number, yea, very few and sojourners in it."

In his sermon the pastor said that "You cannot separate a church from the place in which it is located. It is our church's good pleasure to be located in Brainerd, a city of good homes. I have known Brainerd for more than 20 years and very intimately for seven years. It has improved wonderfully in that time, in the paving of our streets, in its public buildings, in the beautifying of other buildings and homes, in organizations that have for the upbuilding of the people. We look with pride upon our home city. Our city is anchored to our churches.

"When I came here seven years ago I was much pleased in hearing the people tell of the early days of our church. Forty-one years ago in June it was organized. Ten people people strong in faith and rich in courage undertook the responsibilities of so great an enterprise as a church. As a witness of their efforts, look about you today. Soon a new church was built, very beautiful and well adapted for work at that time. In that new building this handful worked. As years went on others joined them. With new and strengthened faith they worked and prayed on.

"In November, 1923, we had about 150 members, our organizations were Sabbath school, ladies' aid, Woman's Missionary society and Young Woman's guild, all functioning well. The audiences were not large, but they listened well and the congregation worked earnestly together.

"As the time went on they began to say we can build a new church. Then plans were laid and these grew into realities and now we worship in our new church, so beautiful, so comfortable and well equipped.

"In the seven years, we have received into the fellowship of our church 186 members, making the present membership 285. In this time there has been raised for current expenses $61,847. for benevolence $6,332. a total of $68,179. Our Sabbath school has averaged through these years 5.978 or for all the seven years 41,849. The pastor has officiated at 116 weddngs, 95 funerals and 179 infant baptisms.

"In these years God has granted us large gifts and still has not diminished His store. He has kept His covenant with us. Christ came to seek and to save the lost. The church's great work is to seek and save the lost, build up and enrich the Christian life and to make known our God among the nations. A church's task is never complete, it needs great aims and purposes to keep its faith, courage and praver working well. These aims we will have and the work we will do and God alone will be glorified," said Rev. Patterson.

At the close of the sermon, Will Anderson sang a hymn, "This Saviour of Mine" which the pastor had written for "Home Coming Day." And then the congregation united in singing it. After the service the people stayed to greet one another and to extend a welcome to those who had come back for the day.

This Saviour of Mine

I rejoice in a Saviour, so gracious, divine,
Today He is living above.
I trust Him alone, and I know He is mine,
The price was all paid by His love.

Chorus—
This Saviour is mine, I know He is mine.
He leadeth me still by His hand.
This Saviour of mine, I know will be thine
As we come to the pilgrim's home-land.

We are thinking today of the things He has done
In the years that we celebrate now.
Of the struggles we've made and the victories won,
Of the strength it was His to allow.
Chorus—

For the morrow of life, let us then have no fear,
As we enter before us He stands.
For the morrow brings joy and the gifts we hold dear
And everything else he demands.
Chorus—

In the laboratory this thoroughbred among motor fuels must pass eleven of the most rigid quality tests ever applied to any gasolene —tests for starting, acceleration, anti-knock, power, vapor pressure, odor, corrosion, sulphur, gum content, distillation, and mileage.

Should a single gallon ever fail to meet any one of these eleven rigid tests, it is never offered for your use. You can bet on the fact that every gallon of Koolmotor Gasolene pumped from a green and white pump is full of unchallengeable service and quality—test by test, mile by mile.

Why be satisfied with a gasolene whose benefits end with a showy effect in one phase of performance? Insist on Koolmotor—the gas that gives perfect performance from the time you start your car until your foot calls a halt to your drive.

PRESBYTERIAN HOMECOMING DAY

7th Anniversary of Pastor With the Church Also Observed at 1st Presbyterian Church Sunday

LARGE ATTENDANCE PRESENT

Original Poem Composed for Occasion by Pastor and Hymn is Sung by Will Anderson

Home Coming Day and the seventh anniversary of the pastor, Rev. A. G. Patterson, were observed at the First Presbyterian church yesterday. Organizations of the church participating were the Sabbath school, ladies' aid, woman's missionary society, junior and intermediate Christian Endeavor and the Men's club, the congregation generally and a large group of friends.

A large audience was present in which there were many who had some time attended the church and came home for the occasion. The flowers were a gift of Mrs. A. C. Erickson. Mrs. Nels Johnson of Pine River and a former member, sang, "My Task."

The pastor's text was found in I Chronicles 16th chapter, "Make known his doings among the people. Remember his covenant forever, the covenant he made when ye were but a few men in number, yea, very few and sojourners in it."

In his sermon the pastor said that "You cannot separate a church from the place in which it is located. It is our church's good pleasure to be located in Brainerd, a city of good homes. I have known Brainerd for more than 20 years and very intimately for seven years. It has improved wonderfully in that time, in the paving of our streets, in its public buildings, in the beautifying of other buildings and homes, in organizations that have for the upbuilding of the people. We look with pride upon our home city. Our city is anchored to our churches.

"When I came here seven years ago I was much pleased in hearing the people tell of the early days of our church. Forty-one years ago in June it was organized. Ten people people strong in faith and rich in courage undertook the responsibilities of so great an enterprise as a church. As a witness of their efforts, look about you today. Soon a new church was built, very beautiful and well adapted for work at that time. In that new building this handful worked. As years went on others joined them. With new and strengthened faith they worked and prayed on.

"In November, 1923, we had about 150 members, our organizations were Sabbath school, ladies' aid, Woman's Missionary society and Young Woman's guild, all functioning well. The audiences were not large, but they listened well and the congregation worked earnestly together.

"As the time went on they began to say we can build a new church. Then plans were laid and these grew into realities and now we worship in our new church, so beautiful, so comfortable and well equipped.

"In the seven years, we have received into the fellowship of our church 186 members, making the present membership 285. In this time there has been raised for current expenses $61.847. for benevolence $6,332. a total of $68.179. Our Sabbath school has averaged through these years 5.978 or for all the seven years 41.-849. The pastor has officiated at 116 weddngs, 95 funerals and 179 infant bantisms.

"In these years God has granted us large gifts and still has not diminished His store. He has kept His covenant with us. Christ came to seek and to save the lost. The church's great work is to seek and save the lost, build up and enrich the Christian life and to make known our God among the nations. A church's task is never complete, it needs great aims and purposes to keep its faith, courage and praver working well. These aims we will have and the work we will do and God alone will be glorified," said Rev. Patterson.

At the close of the sermon, Will Anderson sang a hymn, "This Saviour of Mine" which the pastor had written for "Home Coming Day." And then the congregation united in singing it. After the service the people staved to greet one another and to extend a welcome to those who had come back for the dav.

This Saviour of Mine

I rejoice in a Saviour, so gracious, divine,
Today He is living above.
I trust Him alone, and I know He is mine,
The price was all paid by His love.

Chorus—
This Saviour is mine, I know He is mine.
He leadeth me still by His hand.
This Saviour of mine, I know will be thine
As we come to the pilgrim's home-land.

We are thinking today of the things He has done
In the years that we celebrate now.
Of the struggles we've made and the victories won,
Of the strength it was His to allow.
Chorus—

For the morrow of life, let us then have no fear,
As we enter before us He stands.
For the morrow brings joy and the gifts we hold dear
And everything else he demands.
Chorus—

E. E. Merrell Who Had Only One Job in His Life Passes Away at St. Paul

VISITED HERE OFTEN

Mrs. Hattie M. Parker, Clyde Parker, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Campbell to Attend Rites

Word is received here of the death in St. Paul Sunday of E. E. Merrell, brother-in-law of Mrs. Hattie M. Parker, Brainerd, at the age of 76 years.

Mr. Merrell was well known in this city having visited relatives here at various times for many years past. He has been employed for the past 50 years with the hardware firm of Farwell, Ozmun and Kirk of St. Paul and was secretary of that concern for the past eight years. His employment there constituted his life work, it being the only company he had ever worked for.

Two daughters survive, Mrs. Robert Merel of Baldwin, L. I., and Mrs. Geo. Lemke of New York City.

Brainerd relatives who will attend the rites are Mrs. Parker, Clyde Parker and Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Campbell. The funeral will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at St. Paul.

MERITS OF TEETH ARGUED IN COURT

Ironton Dentist and Patient Take Sides in District Court Action

Teeth, their importance to the happy existence of an individual and the relative merits of plates replacing the natural, became the chief points of arguments, questioning and cross examination of a case in district court before a jury today.

The case heard was that of Mary Riordon vs. A. D. Darling.

Both parties are of Ironton, the former, the patient, the latter the dentist.

As Mrs. Riordon explained she was not satisfied with the plates the doctor provided her with. She went back to his office on several occasions, had adjustments, but could not be satisfied. She wanted the $35 back she had paid for the lower teeth.

There was much discussion as to teeth of different people and particularly those of Mrs. Riordon.

The following jurors will decide whether Mrs. Riordon is entitled to the $70 damages she asks or not: M. W. Olson, Mrs. W. E. Stauner, Mrs. David Robinson, Mrs. Fred W. Kunde, Arthur Lagerquist, Mrs. G. O. Bacon, Mrs. Adolph Denis, Grace Buchite, Frank Benjamin, Sr., Mrs. Leona B. Gorton, Mrs. A. Gatton.

FLOUR TAKEN BY FAMILY IN NEED

Police Hold Such Theory of Breakin of Angel's Flour and Feed Store

Police believed today that a father and his little son of a needy Brainerd family were responsible for the entry of Mrs. A. Angel's Flour and Feed store, 825 Front street early today and the theft of at least one sack of flour.

Checking, the police secured evidence how the rear window had been opened and apparently a boy had crawled through to unlatch the rear door and permit a man to enter. There is no record of identification.

Although there was $6 in the cash register this was not touched.

Officials at the store are checking to learn the number of sacks of flour taken.

"JUDY" By Winifred Van Duzer

ON a cruise with her mother, Judith Archer, young school teacher, is attracted to Kit Camp, the ship's radio operator. Though pretty, Judy's charm is hidden by her eye-glasses and conservative style of dress. Visiting the Public Gardens, at Halifax, Judy hears shots as a scar-faced man dashes out of the shrubbery, followed by a dark, handsome man. Later, on board ship, Judy falls and breaks her glasses. Feeling a steadying hand on her arm, she gazes into the laughing eyes of the handsome stranger of Public Gardens. He is Tristram Millet. Judy and Tris meet Kit, who gives Judy a piercing look. Tris tells Judy she is beautiful. As Tris denies knowledge of the Public Gardens quarrel, the scar-faced man peers in the window. Tris tells Judy it is her imagination. Next morning, Judy sees Kit with a girl and is jealous. Later, he tells Judy he had been waiting for her. She wonders at his attraction for her. Kit's radiogram regarding the stealing of the famous Ballard emeralds catches Judy's attention. Looking down from the hurricane deck with Kit, Judy is startled to see Tris speaking with the scar-faced man.

CHAPTER XVIII.

KIT CAMP was watching the two on the sun deck in a careless, dreamy way. Now he sat up, brought out the little paper covered note book which he filled his newspaper office.

"Another chap got on at Halifax—fellow down there in all the over coats and things. Looks like a disguise, what? The whirlwind reporter will now barge in and demand a few timely remarks on this and that, including names, aliases, destinations, hopes, ambitions, opinions on evolution, the Einstein theory, companionate marriage and the seventh article of faith—if you'll wait here a minute?"

"Ask him what he thinks of slightly insane young fellows who fancy themselves erudite and irresistible."

"Right-o, Judith, my dear." He bent over, laughed into her eyes. "I expect you're nearly always right, Miss Queen Bee. So clever she is—who wouldn't brave the sting for the honey? And sweet... Sharp as the sting and sweet as the honey."

Mockery shivered through his chuckle, but the restless little movements were at the corners of his lips and his hands, lightly touching hers, were warm and eager.

Flushed to the eyes she pushed him away, jerking her head with a great show of impatience. "If you mean to be funny!"

"But I don't! I say, Judy——"

"Oh—thought you were getting an interview? He'll be gone—your man in disguise——"

"My word!" Still laughing, Kit Camp put his hand down and vaulted to the deck below in a way that thrilled Judy.

Big kid—darn big kid! Bumptious and superior—oh, yes—but that was because she happened to be a girl. Pity one couldn't be friendly with an overgrown boy like Mr. Christopher Camp—meet him as a pal instead of an antagonist in the old battle of sex.

Now Judy saw that Kit was approaching the two at the rail. Now Tris had whirled around—how quick Tris was—agile as a cat! He saw her now, put up his hand . . .

She waved back and Tris came swiftly along the deck without a glance at the scarfaced man. Why—just standing there, were they—not together? Not speaking at all? The other paid no attention to Tris, did not turn when he left. Strange—she'd have been sure there was something—a deep silent tie—between them. Sympathy? But enmity may be silent. If enmity wishes to kill, to destroy, it watches in silence, awaiting the chance to strike . . .

A shiver ran along Judy's nerves; suddenly her hands were chunks of ice. Yet, when Tris came leaping up to the hurricane deck, stood there swaying as if the wind were his partner in a graceful eccentric dance, the glamour stole upon her again—went to her head like wine, blurring doubt, quieting apprehension.

She became all at once the other Judy reaching out gleefully for whatever was mysterious about this man, the flash of him, the dark glory.

"Would have come jaunting up here before if I'd suspected this blow-away perch a haunt of yours. You're an early bird, Judy? I've heard of folks who fare forth at dawn, having the strange notion that sunrise is adventure and so on."

"And what would you call dawn, Mr. Millet? Seems to me you sound somewhat indolent not to say out and out lazy. And sunrise may be adventure."

He laughed and sat down close beside her, debonairely dropping his arm at her back so she must rest against his shoulder. "I'm both, though more lazy than indolent. Have not been up before noon in ye-ahs and ye-ahs; can't seem to come to life before the zero hour."

"An odd way to live," Judy said thoughtfully. "But perhaps you work at night? I wondered about this a little—about your work——"

The blank look crossing his eyes—the smile, the warmth of him exactly as before—only a door closed in her face.

"Really? Oh—you wondered about me—really?"

Blood stung her cheeks; she squirmed in a pained embarrassment, spoke quickly, "You speculate this way. Go guessing what people do. You see, I just started work this year; sometimes I'm a little excited about it. Though it sharpens your temper—schoolteaching——"

He studied her, sparks of humor flashing all over her face. "You a teacher, Judy? And I swore warfare upon them all—well, the oath is repudiated here and now. Can't quite place you in a school room."

"Why?" she asked sharply. Going to be high-handed, was he? Men! Either making fun of women's jobs or condescendingly allowing them dull, unimportant work till they could get married, as Kit Camp did.

But Tris Millet shrugged, gave her a vague answer. "Imagined you doing something else, for no good reason. Judy," he went on softly, "has any one ever written a sonnet about your eyes?

"Oh—laughing at me——"

He took her hand, all at once unsmiling, rather sad. "Never charge me with that...I mean it exactly, that your eyes are like the clouds over there where the sun is trying to break through. Silver gray and full of light...So sweet..."

That went echoing in her thought like the haunting beauty of an old refrain. His hand was slender and tanned almost bronze and his fingers were long and pliant and sensitive; she watched his fingers as they moved restlessly back and forth upon her palm and thought how different he was from Kit Camp. Blundering into awkward compliments while he flung her about like a cave man—Kit Camp did this. Well—perhaps this Tris Millet was different from all the others; not superior like all the others.

The bugle sounded for lunch, echoing faintly from one of the lower decks; Tris helped her up—asked if she would dance with him in the evening. Judy noticed in a dim way that the sun deck was deserted as they went below. Kit Camp had left—hadn't bothered to tell her goodbye.

She did not care. Tonight was coming. A golden irridescence about the vision of tonight! Let the other Judy have her fling for once—step into real life for an hour or two.... Strange that Tris Millet was the only person she had ever met who could make her feel this way, gay and reckless and a little intoxicated with the joy of being herself.

Long afterward Judy wondered if the radiance would have swept her—if she would have danced with Tris—had she been able to peer into the future, see what followed upon the evening, events all woven together like links of a chain.

Judy loitered in the corridor, met Mr. Tennant, who paused to twinkle at the flying mop of curls like a dusky cloud about her head.

"Really thought it was your mother coming along Miss Judy. Declare if you're not the image of her, all blown about as you are."

"Except that mother has light hair and a curve or two, while I'm up and down as a broomstick—thank you, just the same, kind sir."

She tossed him a smile, went hurrying along, oddly alarmed. Getting all jumbled like a scrambled egg! Losing her bearings, thrown about like a ship with the compass wrong.

Once she had life all figured out and charted. You had to be serious about life, mind the connection between now and time to come. Study, struggle—this was the way to gain a professorship in some college—Columbia, maybe! Be an authority on your subject with what you had to say talked of everywhere.

Yet now she was in a flutter because a young fellow had smiled at her, tossed a compliment about her looks, remembered to say she wasn't like a schoolma-am, asked her to dance.

"Sea air. Oh, what's the matter with me? Silly as Betsy Rowe. Light-headed. Just because it's vacation. This can't happen. I'll get back where I started fom."

So she took down the plainest frock her new wardrobe offered—a slim little white crepe, sleeveless and short—put it on in a grimly obstinate way, nodded stubbornly as she refused a glance at the mirror.

Not for the world would she have admitted it—not for the world and a star—but certain things kept running through her head. "With the wind blowing your hair that way—you're lovely, Judy. Like a picture—beautiful."

Kit Camp saying that, choking up, face all red. Then Tris Millet, lips suddenly straight: "Your eyes—silver gray and full of light. So sweet—"

Peggy was drawing filmy stockings over her ankles. Judy gave her a quick glance, pretending to be hunting for something on the dresser, put her face close to the glass and looked at her eyes. Gray but merely curious; no light in them now.

Ah—self conscious—thinking if the outside of her head instead of what she could put into it. Stop this quickly enough; the plain little dress would help.

She caught up her hair, strained it back, thrust pins into the knot. Then she saw that the nose was red, sunburned from the wind, and touched it with the powder puff. She stood there, restless and uncomfortable.

To Be Continued Monday.

5 MEMBERS OF BARGE CREW LISTED MISSING

COAST GUARDSMEN SEARCH FOR SURVIVORS OF NORTHERN LIGHT

BARGE FOUNDERED OFF CARY FORT LIGHTHOUSE NEAR FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Five members of the crew of the barge, Northern Light, were listed missing today as coast guardsmen, aided by aviators, searched along the Florida east coast.

J. Steward, a member of the Northern Light's crew, was picked up last night by the tug Ontario. He said he believed the other five members were lost when the barge foundered off Cary Fort lighthouse, 50 miles south of here, Sunday morning.

The missing men were: J. W. Heath, Master, Mobile; L. Bodden, Tampa; C. B. Pittman, Mobile; R. P. Watson, Mobile, and K. Legg, address undetermined.

While coast guardsmen searched along the coast for possible survivors, Robert Moore, manager of the Curtiss Marine Base, Miami, and R. P. Hyams, New Orleans, owner of the Northern Light, aided in the search in an airplane.

ASK APPROPRIATIONS TO DEVELOP MISSISSIPPI

Washington, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—A request for adequate appropriations to develop the Mississippi river system as soon as possible was presented to President Hoover today by officials of the Mississippi Valley association. They asked the president to carry out a long time program improvement for the river and its tributaries.

Included in the delegation were William R. Dawes, brother of the ambassador to Great Britain; Cleveland A. Newton, St. Louis; R. A. Brown, Birmingham; Arthur Rogers, Minneapolis, and Rufus E. Lee, Omaha.

Charles Arthur (the Great) Shires is to Be Married

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires arose early today to don makeup and be married before a battery of motion picture cameras to Betty Greenabaum of Chicago.

Shires has a contract with Universal pictures through which he will be paid $7,500 for 10 day work. After much argument he gave permission for the filming of his marriage "as a bonus to the company."

Although he acceded to the presence of cameras, the erstwhile Washington Senators first baseman refused to reveal the time and place of the wedding.

STANLEY BOYNTON GAINS RECORD

HOLDS JUNIOR SPEED RECORDS FOR EAST AND WEST CROSSINGS OF UNITED STATES

Rockland, Me., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—An 18-year-old youth who took his first airplane ride little more than a year ago held today the junior speed records for both the eastward and westward crossings of the United States.

The young aviator, Stanley Boynton of Lexington, Mass., acquired his second record when he landed his scarlet Curtiss-Cessna monoplane at Scarboro airport at 4:20 p. m. yesterday, thus completing a flight from Los Angeles in 20 hours 29 minutes.

This was three hours and 24 minutes better than the time set by Robert Buck of Elizabeth, N. J., for the shorter Los Angeles-New York journey.

Feeling a steadying hand on her arm, she gazes into the laughing eyes of the handsome stranger of Public Gardens. He is Tristram Millet. Judy and Tris meet Kit, who gives Judy a piercing look. Tris tells Judy she is beautiful. As Tris denies knowledge of the Public Gardens quarrel, the scar-faced man peers in the window. Tris tells Judy it is her imagination. Next morning, Judy sees Kit with a girl and is jealous. Later, he tells Judy he had been waiting for her. She wonders at his attraction for her. Kit's radiogram regarding the stealing of the famous Ballard emeralds catches Judy's attention. Looking down from the hurricane deck with Kit, Judy is startled to see Tris speaking with the scar-faced man.

CHAPTER XVIII.

KIT CAMP was watching the two on the sun deck in a careless, dreamy way. Now he sat up, brought out the little paper covered note book which he filled his newspaper office.

"Another chap got on at Halifax—fellow down there in all the overcoats and things. Looks like a disguise, what? The whirlwind reporter will now barge in and demand a few timely remarks on this and that, including names, aliases, destinations, hopes, ambitions, opinions on evolution, the Einstein theory, companionate marriage and the seventh article of faith—if you'll wait here a minute?"

"Ask him what he thinks of slightly insane young fellows who fancy themselves erudite and irresistible."

"Right-o, Judith, my dear." He bent over, laughed into her eyes. "I expect you're nearly always right, Miss Queen Bee. So clever she is—who wouldn't brave the sting for the honey? And sweet... Sharp as the sting and sweet as the honey."

Mockery shivered through his chuckle, but the restless little movements were at the corners of his lips and his hands, lightly touching hers, were warm and eager.

Flushed to the eyes she pushed him away, jerking her head with a great show of impatience. "If you mean to be funny!"

"But I don't! I say, Judy——"

"Oh—thought you were getting an interview? He'll be gone—your man in disguise——"

"My word!" Still laughing, Kit Camp put his hand down and vaulted to the deck below in a way that thrilled Judy.

Big kid—darn big kid! Bumptious and superior—oh, yes—but that was because she happened to be a girl. Pity one couldn't be friendly with an overgrown boy like Mr. Christopher Camp—meet him as a pal instead of an antagonist in the old battle of sex.

Now Judy saw that Kit was approaching the two at the rail. Now Tris had whirled around—how quick Tris was—agile as a cat! He saw her now, put up his hand . . .

She waved back and Tris came swiftly along the deck without a glance at the scarfaced man. Why—just standing there, were they—not together? Not speaking at all? The other paid no attention to Tris, did not turn when he left. Strange—she'd have been sure there was something—a deep silent tie—between them. Sympathy? But enmity may be silent. If enmity wishes to kill, to destroy, it watches in silence, awaiting the chance to strike . . .

A shiver ran along Judy's nerves; suddenly her hands were chunks of ice. Yet, when Tris came leaping up to the hurricane deck, stood there swaying as if the wind were his partner in a graceful eccentric dance, the glamour stole upon her again—went to her head like wine, blurring doubt, quieting apprehension.

She became all at once the other Judy reaching out gleefully for whatever was mysterious about this man, the flash of him, the dark glory.

"Would have come jaunting up here before if I'd suspected this blow-away perch a haunt of yours. You're an early bird, Judy? I've heard of folks who fare forth at dawn, having the strange notion that sunrise is adventure and so on."

"And what would you call dawn, Mr. Millet? Seems to me you sound somewhat indolent not to say out and out lazy. And sunrise may be adventure."

He laughed and sat down close beside her, debonairely dropping his arm at her back so she must rest against his shoulder. "I'm both, though more lazy than indolent. Have not been up before noon in ye-ahs and ye-ahs; can't seem to come to life before the zero hour."

"An odd way to live," Judy said thoughtfully. "But perhaps you work at night? I wondered about this a little—about your work——"

The blank look crossing his eyes—the smile, the warmth of him exactly as before—only a door closed in her face.

"Really? Oh—you wondered about me—really?"

Blood stung her cheeks; she squirmed in a pained embarrassment, spoke quickly, "You speculate this way. Go guessing what people do. You see, I just started work this year; sometimes I'm a little excited about it. Though it sharpens your temper—school-teaching——"

He studied her, sparks of humor flashing all over her face. "You a teacher, Judy? And I swore warfare upon them all—well, the oath is repudiated here and now. Can't quite place you in a school room."

"Why?" she asked sharply. Going to be high-handed, was he? Men! Either making fun of women's jobs or condescendingly allowing them dull, unimportant work till they could get married, as Kit Camp did.

But Tris Millet shrugged, gave her a vague answer. "Imagined you doing something else, for no good reason. Judy," he went on softly, "has any one ever written a sonnet about your eyes?

"Oh—laughing at me——"

He took her hand, all at once unsmiling, rather sad. "Never charge me with that... I mean it exactly, that your eyes are like the clouds over there where the sun is trying to break through. Silver gray and full of light... So sweet..."

That went echoing in her thought like the haunting beauty of an old refrain. His hand was slender and tanned almost bronze and his fingers were long and pliant and sensitive; she watched his fingers as they moved restlessly back and forth upon her palm and thought how different he was from Kit Camp. Blundering into awkward compliments while he flung her about like a cave man—Kit Camp did this. Well—perhaps this Tris Millet was different from all the others; not superior like all the others.

The bugle sounded for lunch, echoing faintly from one of the lower decks; Tris helped her up—asked if she would dance with him in the evening. Judy noticed in a dim way that the sun deck was deserted as they went below. Kit Camp had left—hadn't bothered to tell her goodbye.

She did not care. Tonight was coming. A golden irridescence about the vision of tonight! Let the other Judy have her fling for once—step into real life for an hour or two.... Strange that Tris Millet was the only person she had ever met who could make her feel this way, gay and reckless and a little intoxicated with the joy of being herself.

Long afterward Judy wondered if the radiance would have swept her—if she would have danced with Tris—had she been able to peer into the future, see what followed upon the evening, events all woven together like links of a chain.

Judy loitered in the corridor, met Mr. Tennant, who paused to twinkle at the flying mop of curls like a dusky cloud about her head. "Really thought it was your mother coming along Miss Judy. Declare if you're not the image of her, all blown about as you are."

"Except that mother has light hair and a curve or two, while I'm up and down as a broomstick—thank you, just the same, kind sir."

She tossed him a smile, went hurrying along, oddly alarmed. Getting all jumbled like a scrambled egg! Losing her bearings, thrown about like a ship with the compass wrong.

Once she had life all figured out and charted. You had to be serious about life, mind the connection between now and time to come. Study, struggle—this was the way to gain a professorship in some college—Columbia, maybe! Be an authority on your subject with what you had to say talked of everywhere.

Yet now she was in a flutter because a young fellow had smiled at her, tossed a compliment about her looks, remembered to say she wasn't like a schoolma-am, asked her to dance.

"Sea air. Oh, what's the matter with me? Silly as Betsy Rowe. Light-headed. Just because it's vacation. This can't happen. I'll get back where I started fom."

So she took down the plainest frock her new wardrobe offered—a slim little white crepe, sleeveless and short—put it on in a grimly obstinate way, nodded stubbornly as she refused a glance at the mirror.

Not for the world would she have admitted it—not for the world and a star—but certain things kept running through her head. "With the wind blowing your hair that way—you're lovely, Judy. Like a picture—beautiful."

Kit Camp saying that, choking up, face all red. Then Tris Millet, lips suddenly straight: "Your eyes—silver gray and full of light. So sweet—"

Peggy was drawing filmy stockings over her ankles. Judy gave her a quick glance, pretending to be hunting for something on the dresser, put her face close to the glass and looked at her eyes. Gray but merely curious; no light in them now.

Ah—self conscious—thinking if the outside of her head instead of what she could put into it. Stop this quickly enough; the plain little dress would help.

She caught up her hair, strained it back, thrust pins into the knot. Then she saw that the nose was red, sunburned from the wind, and touched it with the powder puff. She stood there, restless and uncomfortable.

To Be Continued Monday.

5 MEMBERS OF BARGE CREW LISTED MISSING

COAST GUARDSMEN SEARCH FOR SURVIVORS OF NORTHERN LIGHT

BARGE FOUNDERED OFF CARY FORT LIGHTHOUSE NEAR FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Five members of the crew of the barge, Northern Light, were listed missing today as coast guardsmen, aided by aviators, searched along the Florida east coast.

J. Steward, a member of the Northern Light's crew, was picked up last night by the tug Ontario. He said he believed the other five members were lost when the barge foundered off Cary Fort lighthouse, 50 miles south of here, Sunday morning.

The missing men were: J. W. Heath, Master, Mobile; L. Bodden, Tampa; C. B. Pittman, Mobile; R. P. Watson, Mobile, and K. Legg, address undetermined.

While coast guardsmen searched along the coast for possible survivors, Robert Moore, manager of the Curtiss Marine Base, Miami, and R. P. Hyams, New Orleans, owner of the Northern Light, aided in the search in an airplane.

ASK APPROPRIATIONS TO DEVELOP MISSISSIPPI

Washington, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—A request for adequate appropriations to develop the Mississippi river system as soon as possible was presented to President Hoover today by officials of the Mississippi Valley association. They asked the president to carry out a long time program improvement for the river and its tributaries.

Included in the delegation were William R. Dawes, brother of the ambassador to Great Britain; Cleveland A. Newton, St. Louis; R. A. Brown, Birmingham; Arthur Rogers, Minneapolis, and Rufus E. Lee, Omaha.

Charles Arthur (the Great) Shires is to Be Married

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires arose early today to don makeup and be married before a battery of motion picture cameras to Betty Greenabaum of Chicago.

Shires has a contract with Universal pictures through which he will be paid $7,500 for 10 day work. After much argument he gave permission for the filming of his marriage "as a bonus to the company."

Although he acceded to the presence of cameras, the erstwhile Washington Senators first baseman refused to reveal the time and place of the wedding.

STANLEY BOYNTON GAINS RECORD

HOLDS JUNIOR SPEED RECORDS FOR EAST AND WEST CROSSINGS OF UNITED STATES

Rockland, Me., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—An 18-year-old youth who took his first airplane ride little more than a year ago held today the junior speed records for both the eastward and westward crossings of the United States.

The young aviator, Stanley Boynton of Lexington, Mass., acquired his second record when he landed his scarlet Curtiss-Cessna monoplane at Scarboro airport at 4:20 p. m. yesterday, thus completing a flight from Los Angeles in 20 hours 29 minutes.

This was three hours and 24 minutes better than the time set by Robert Buck of Elizabeth, N. J., for the shorter Los Angeles-New York journey.

DIES IN HOSPITAL AFTER BEING HURLED FROM HIS BICYCLE

Austin, Minn., Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Robert Campbell, Jr., 15, died in the hospital here yesterday after being hurled from his bicycle by an automobile near Blooming Prairie.

C. J. Sargent, president of the Goodhue County National bank at Red Wing, told authorities he was driving east on highway No. 40 when the bicycle suddenly loomed before him. He swerved to avoid it but sideswiped the cycle and crashed into a car of five Blooming Prairie teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. Sargent suffered painful cuts and bruises when their car overturned.
